600 SOLDIERS LEFT DEAD AND WOUNDED ON FIELD OF BATTLE

Crushing Defeat Is Inflicted on the Huerta Forces by the Rebels in Southern Chihuahua.

REBEL FORCES MOVING ON THE STATE CAPITAL

All Outlying Troops Called In to Defend Chihuahua City. All the Railway Lines Out of Commission.

El Paso, Texas, June 15.—Six hundred federals were killed or wounded in a battle May 29, at Sansillo, according to reports reaching here today from southern Chihuahua state.

After this victory over more than 1,200 federals, the insurgents, under Generals Villa, Chao, and Hernandez marched north toward the state capital, whence the Parral garrison had retreated. They are reported as having taken Cusihuirachio, a mining town, west of Chihuahua City.

The four hundred federals, who Friday evacuated Madera, were met yesterday by Villa's men at Bustillos. The rebels poured a hot fire into the federal troop train, killing the engineer and fireman. The train retired.

General Mercado, acting military governor, has called in all other outlying garrisons to the defense of the capital. The insurgents are manuevering to prevent these movements.

Some five hundred federals at Juarez alone remain unaffected, by the general's orders. Juarez is threatened by a movement of constitutionalists from the Ojinaga district below the Texas border, according to military reports received at Fort Bliss, Texas.

Railroads Out of Commission.

Practically every railway line in the state is out of commission, as a result of rebel activities. There is no traffic on the Mexican Central north or south of the state capital. The Mexican Northwestern railway is operating below the border only as far as Casas Grandes.

The only armed force of consequence in the Casas Grandes district is led by Colonel Portalis, a recruit from the federal ranks. He has proclaimed for the Vasquez Gomez revolution, which is not connected with the constitutionalist movement.

After taking Pearson last week, Castille was joined by Braulio Hernandez, who previously was reported executed. Hernandez, a former secretary of state of Chihuahua, is said to be organizing a provisional government under the Vasquez Gomez banner in the Casas Grandes district, which was left unprotected by either federals or constitutionalists as far south as Madera.

REBELS DEMAND SURRENDER OF TOWN OF SAN LUIS POTOSI

Mexico City, June 15.—The rebels have demanded the surrender of the town of San Luis Potosi, the key to communication with Tampico and the oil fields. There are said to be 4,000 rebels between San Luis Potosi and Saltillo and to the east and northeast. Practically all of Tamaulipas, with the exception of Tampico, is at the mercy of the rebels.

General Blanquet, the new minister of war, is promising to protect San Luis Potosi, Nuevo Leon and Tamaulipas. He said today that he was planning an expedition from Vera Cruz, consisting of three vessels which will be sent to Matamoras. He expects co-operation from the south and will also make an effort to open the Laredo route.

Durango has been under siege for seventy days and the inhabitants have been reduced to dire straits. The federals today reoccupied Zacatecas, which was recently evacuated by the rebels.

An uprising in the state of Campeche, headed by the governor, Manuel Brito, is giving the federal government some concern, although it is officially asserted that the movement is not receiving the support of the people.

There are rumors of further changes in the cabinet. According to report,

Thinking of Your Vacation

or of going on some pleasant short journey or week-end trip? Lots of people are nowadays vaguely planning and wondering where to go to escape the routine of workaday hours, if even for ever so brief a time.

No better bureau of information than The Constitution, with its travel and special journey announcements. Often an advertisement solves a problem that has been a perplexing annoyance for days, perhaps.

A tour through The Constitution advertising columns is itself an extremely pleasant and profitable journey.

KISS IN CLOSED CAB COSTS THIS COUPLE AUTO RIDE AND FINE

Their silhouettes cast upon the drawn shades of a cab as it passed beneath a street lamp caused the arrest of a woman giving her name as Mrs. T. R. Lucas, of Alabama, and J. H. Surley, of Ball Ground, Ga., Saturday night on the charge of kissing. Plain Clothes Policemen Green and McKibben made the cases.

When informed that she was under arrest and would have to go to police headquarters, the woman, a middle-aged brunette, well-dressed and apparently refined, broke into hysterics. Before the auto trip to police station was finished, her condition necessitated removal to Grady hospital, where she was confined for several hours.

Neither denied indulging in the kiss that cost so dearly. They declared they believed they had the right to bid an osculatory goodbye in the seclusion of a cab, if they wanted to. Both were going away on trains that left from the Terminal station, they said. They were arrested on the Terminal plaza. Collateral of $25@5 each was put up and both were released.

"TAKE CARE OF BABY" DYING MAN'S REQUEST

After Taking Carbolic Acid, M. Roy Fowler Falls Unconscious in Front of Wife.

M. Roy Fowler, a butcher, living at 125 Hunnicutt street, walked into the bathroom of his home early yesterday afternoon. A second later he came out and strode down the hallway to where his wife was standing, holding her 6-months-old baby in arms.

The man staggered slightly and there was a wild look in his eyes. He brushed his hand across the forehead, steadied himself by grasping at the staircase railing, and faced his wife.

"I'm dying," he gasped, "and it won't be but a moment before I'm dead. Take good care of the baby, and put a few flowers on my grave. I had to do it—I just had to. Don't try to save me!"

Fowler then dropped unconscious at the feet of his wife. He had taken the contents of an entire vial of carbolic acid which he stepped into the bathroom. His lips and mouth were badly scalded by the acid. The bottle was never found. It was thought that he threw it out of the bathroom window.

An ambulance was called from Grady hospital. He was carried to the sanatorium, but died on the way. His body has been removed to the P. J. Bloomfield undertaking establishment, on South Pryor street. It will be transferred to Indian Creek cemetery Tuesday morning at 7:30 o'clock, where the funeral and interment will take place.

After an investigation, Coroner Donehoo said Sunday night that he believed Fowler's suicide was caused by financial troubles. He was a former railway employee and was an active member of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

He also was a member of the Piedmont lodge, No. 190, Odd Fellows, and the Chippewa tribe, No. 50, Red Men. He was 46 years old and had been living in Atlanta for several years.

A coroner's inquest will be held this morning at 10 o'clock in the Bloomfield establishment. The dead man is survived by his wife and one child; three brothers, W. A., of Ball Ground, A. Fowler, and two sisters, Miss Nan Fowler and Mrs. L. M. Hudson.

Fowler, for several months, had been operating a butcher shop on East Hunter street.

DRIVES CAR INTO POLE TO AVOID COLLISION

Automobile of Paul Norcross Damaged and Pole Is Cut In Two.

Steering his speeding automobile towards the sidewalk in order to avert a collision with an oncoming machine, Paul H. Norcross, a well-known business man who lives on Ponce de Leon avenue, yesterday afternoon shaved a pole at the corner of Highland and Ponce de Leon avenues, and narrowly escaped serious injury to himself, his wife and young child.

The pole was cut in half. The automobile which Mr. Norcross strove to avoid passed by unhurt. The Norcross car was severely damaged about the hood and radiator, but was able later to move into the city on its own power. The occupants were not hurt.

Mr. Norcross was driving down Ponce de Leon avenue early in the afternoon. At the junction of Highland an outgoing trolley car obscured view of an automobile going in the same direction. As the street car drew nearer, Mr. Norcross, at the steering wheel, saw the coming machine.

Had he kept in his original path there would have been a collision. It was a case of swerve to the right or ram the other car. With a quick twist Mr. Norcross sent his machine into a nearby telegraph pole.

FROM SOURCE TO END OF MISSISSIPPI RIVER

St. Paul, Minn., June 15.—Andrew Koehn, honorably discharged quartermaster of the United States navy, who intends to row the entire length of the Mississippi river, left Minneapolis on his long journey today. He will reenter the navy when he finishes his trip, which he expects will consume about ninety days.

The trip is being made in a galvanized steel boat. Koehn expects to cover the distance between here and Lake Itasca (about 500 miles), in 20 days. The undertaking has been approved by the navy department.

24 PERSONS HURT IN TROLLEY CRASH

Victims Mostly Women and Children—Some of Them Will Die—Accident Occurred at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., June 15.—Twenty-four persons, mostly women and children, were injured in a rear-end trolley car collision on the Grove Couer Lake line in St. Louis county tonight. Two of them, Mrs. Dora Bingham and Mrs. Regina A. Carouthers, will probably die. A score of others were bruised and cut by falling glass, but refused to go to the hospital.

The accident occurred near Overland Park. Both were open-air cars, crowded with picnickers. The trolley of the first car came off as it rounded a curve, leaving the car in darkness and the second car, running 40 miles an hour, crashed into it.

The cars were interlocked, and both telescoped. A passenger ran a mile to telephone for a wrecker. Nineteen of the injured were taken to the Missouri Baptist sanitarium and five were treated by physicians at Overland. The others helped each other bandage up their wounds and were brought into town on the wrecker.

The crash knocked women and children out from either side of the cars into the gulley beside the tracks.

The shrieks of the children, frantic mothers and injured passengers brought farmers and suburbanites to the scene from a radius of half a mile.

The open-air cars were twice the length of the city street cars and had only awnings as roofs.

The forward end of one car and the rear half of the other were reduced to splinters. A similar accident occurred on the same curve two years ago.

CAMPAIGNS ARE URGED TO SAVE LIVES OF BABES

Washington, June 15.—Warning every community in the nation that the great death rate of babies is due to diseases which to a large extent are preventable, the children's bureau of the department of labor has prepared a compilation of the steps which various up-to-date cities are taking to protect child life, and will circulate it in a national campaign of diffusing child welfare ideas.

This bulletin, which will be a feature of the children's bureau, exhorts every community to wage summer campaigns to save the babies' lives.

In wards of such cities as New York and Philadelphia, where systematic summer baby saving campaigns have been undertaken, the death rate of infants decreased between 30 and 40 per cent.

A baby nursed by its mother, the children's bureau declares, has approximately ten times the chances to live that a bottle-fed baby has.

The bulletin describes various municipal and philanthropic activities in the directions of child welfare such as inspection of milk supply, municipal milk dispensing stations; baby clinics; visiting nurses, instruction of mothers and the destruction of the death-distributing fly.

WATER IS ADMITTED TO THE GATUN LOCKS

Panama, June 15.—Water was admitted yesterday for the first time to the Gatun locks. This was for the purpose of testing the valves, and the test was considered completely satisfactory.

INVESTMENTS IN SUBURBAN REALTY

—have been the basis of numerous fortunes. Here, in Atlanta, you undoubtedly know men grown wealthy through judicious investments in this city's suburbs. More and more people are leaving the dust and noise of the city for a plot of ground and a bungalow where the air is sweet and fresh. Look at the beautiful home sections that have sprung up within the last few years. They are only forerunners of what is yet to be.

Think of the money made by those shrewd enough to gain control of this land, improve it and offer it at an advance to an eager public. You have the same opportunity with this difference—you'll make more on your investment because of what has gone before.

Buy a lot or two—as many as you can—in an outlying district. Pay a small sum weekly or monthly as you will.. Go on with your daily occupation and sit tight. It will not be long 'ere the houses built and other improvements made will have greatly increased the value of your holdings.

Atlanta is growing rapidly. But only those who have been absent for a time can appreciate the wonderful strides made. It is doubtful, if any other city anywhere near the size of this offers so many safe opportunities for investment in real estate. Strangers appreciate this and come here with the express purpose of buying land.

The Constitution's Classified offers daily many splendid opportunities for investment in suburban realty. Turn to those pages now and read. Do the same every day.

United States Troops Fighting Moros

The American troops in the Philippines have recently been in battle with the fierce Moros, ruled by the sultan of Zolo. The Moros were entrenched, but were driven from their positions. Several Americans were killed. General Pershing describes the battle as one of the fiercest in the history of the Philippines. The Moros are Mohammedans, and have always resisted American domination.

FEDERAL BAN ASKED ON ALL CHILD LABOR

Drastic Measure to Be Backed in Congress by Roosevelt Supporters.

New York, June 15.—A comprehensive plan for federal prohibition of child labor will be proposed in a bill to be introduced in the house of representatives in Washington on Tuesday by Congressman Ira C. Copley, of Illinois, was announced by the progressive party national service tonight. The bill is based on the principles of former Senator Beveridges' original proposal in 1907, denying the right of interstate transportation to the products of child labor, manufacturers, producers, interstate carriers, jobbers and wholesalers who trade in goods for unlawful shipments. By a provision similar to that of the pure foods and drugs act, commerce remains free to goods stamped or labeled "Registered under the federal child labor act." Shipments from states having equivalent child labor laws are exempted from the operation of the proposed law.

The bill provides:

"Section 2. That the employment of a child under 14 years of age in any mill, factory, cannery, workshop, manufacturing or mechanical establishment; of a child under 16 years of age in any coal mine, coal breaker, coke oven, quarry, or in any establishment where poisonous or dangerous acids, gases or dyes are used, wherein the work done or materials or equipment handled are dangerous to the life and limb or injurious to the health or morals of such a child is hereby designated and defined as anti-social child labor, and as destrimental to the general welfare and debasing to commerce."

"The unusual phrase, anti-social child labor," is used to express the motive of the proposed legislation, the protection of society from the stunting of future generations," says the party's statement. The bill has been indorsed by a joint conference of the legislative reference committee and progressive congressmen. The bill does not go to the extent of the uniform child labor law for the staets in prohibiting all forms of harmful child labor. This would involve many practical difficulties, including the maintenance of an elaborate machinery of federal inspection. Mr. Copley's proposal is simply to establish a minimum standard and to insure that it is not nationally enforced.

SUNDAY WAS AS WARM AS ANY DAY IN JUNE

Sunday proved as warm as any day in June, and was in striking contrast to this day a week before, when cold and rain made the weather look like that of late autumn day.

Officially, the temperature was not known, as the United States weather bureau is not open on the first day of the week, but from private thermometers, the mercury crawled well into the nineties by the beginning of the afternoon.

The day was clear, as forecasted, and also considerably warmer than on Saturday, and a light breeze tempered the power of the sun, making the atmosphere bearable at all times.

STRICKEN BY FEVER, HE FLED TO THE WOODS

Lewisburg, W. Va., June 15.—DeWitt Gardner, auditor of the Sewell railroad at Rainelle, Greenbrier county, disappeared yesterday and was found today in a woods suffering from an attack of typhoid fever. Mr. Gardner was delirious and ran for three miles through the woods before being captured by his friends. His condition is precarious.

MRS. MARY E. BRYAN DIES IN CLARKSTON

For Many Years She Was Contributor to Sunny South and Uncle Remus.

Mrs. Mary E. Bryan, the highest salaried women of her day, and author of forty-seven different books, died at her residence in Clarkston, Ga., at 10:30 o'clock Sunday night. Her death will be widely mourned by thousands who have read her books and grown to love her, as well as by the many personal friends all over the country who were privileged to know her.

As editor of The Fireside Companion, it is stated she earned a salary of $25,000 a year. For twelve years she was actively connected with The Sunny South, which was afterwards taken over by the Uncle Remus company. She is survived by three children, Mrs. C. P. Byrd, of Clarkston, Ga.; Mrs. C. A. Wilson, of St. Louis, Mo., and Fred Bryan, of Clarkston, Ga.

"Mance" was one of her best-known works, and was widely popular at that time. Some of her first stories were published by Scott's Magazine, a magazine published in Atlanta shortly after the war.

After the establishment of The Sunny South she became a regular contributor, and was the editor of a department, and afterwards she conducted a department on Uncle Remus. She was one of the best-known literary women in the south.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

For Public Printer

Cornelius J. Ford, of Hoboken, N J., appointed public printer at $5,500 a year, was an original Wilson man in New Jersey. He will have charge of 4,500 men. He is 46 years old and has been a printer since boyhood. There has been a keen contest for this position, and at one time there was an intimation from an authoritative source that President Lynch, of the International Typographical union, had been selected. As a member of the New Jersey legislature Mr. Ford was a staunch supporter of the policies advocated by Woodrow Wilson when governor. Mr. Ford was born in Hoboken February 27, 1867, and has lived there all his life. Last year he ran for congress at the primary, but was defeated and was then appointed sergeant-at-arms of the house at Trenton, N. J. For ten years Mr. Ford has been a member of the executive council of the American federation of Labor.

COL. THOMAS FELDER GOES TO CINCINNATI

Says Trip Has Nothing to Do With That of Solicitor Dorsey

Following the departure of Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey for Atlantic City Saturday afternoon, Col. Thomas B. Felder left Sunday afternoon at 5:10 o'clock for Cincinnati.

He said that his trip had no connection whatever with that of the solicitor general. He would not disclose his object in going to Cincinnati, however, and said only that he would be in the Ohio city for several days. Business was his motive in leaving, he declared, although he would not tell what business he intended to transact.

Colonel Felder declares that the affidavit which an Atlanta paper, on Sunday morning, accredits George Gentry with having made, verifies his own contention.

"It supports me in every particular," he said. "It corroborates my statement that Gentry is willing to return to Atlanta at any time the grand jury or any other investigating committee needed him; that he is passing under an assumed name in Washington, and that he was striving to keep out of the reach of certain Atlantans who are endeavoring to find him.

"He even admits in this last affidavit that the dictagraph reports were padded. He says that changes were made, although it is intimated that they were immaterial. He acknowledges having signed Miles' affidavit, and says that it was correct thoroughly. This, in itself, is all the support I would ask of Gentry. The affidavit obtained by Detective Miles is proof positive that the reports were padded—that is an established fact.

"Another thing: Gentry says again that his note book—the original transcription of the Williams House conversations—is in the vault of a prominent and reliable Atlanta attorney, and that they will be produced at time of any investigation. Even though Gentry testified otherwise, we have the notes—they are all that is needed to prove our contention that the published reports were altered."

Colonel Felder would not talk regarding his trip to Cincinnati.

"I am going there on a matter of business," was all he would say. "It wouldn't interest the public in general, and I therefore will not say my plans if I disclosed my mission. I will return within the next few days."

FIRST REAL HOT WAVE STRIKES THE COUNTRY

Washington, June 15.—Practically the entire country sweltered today under the first real hot wave of the season, and tonight the weather bureau experts built out no hope for cooler weather within the next forty-eight hours.

Omaha, Neb., and St. Joseph, Mo., were the hottest cities in the United States today, with the mercury hovering around 96 degrees. Chicago ran a close second, with the thermometer registering 94.

Washington suffered its hottest day of the season and one heat stroke occurred. The maximum temperature at the weather bureau today was 92, but the government's thermometer registered 100 degrees.

Steamer Damages Canal.

St. Catharines, Ontario, June 15.—Four gates of the wall and canal lock No. 1, at Port Dalhousie, were carried away by a freight steamer today, allowing all the water in the three-mile level to Lock No. 2 to flow out, and completely tying up navigation between Lakes Erie and Ontario. The engineer of the steamer Lloyd Porter, upbound, which suffered a damaged bow, said he misunderstood orders.

DEMOCRATS BALK AT WILSON'S PLAN FOR MONEY REFORM

It Is Evident That the Leaders Have Resolved Not to Undertake Currency Legislation at Present.

ONLY TARIFF REVISION WILL BE CONSIDERED

Little Enthusiasm in Either House for Currency Legislation—To Push Tariff Through and Adjourn.

Washington, June 15.—Developments of the last week at both ends of the capitol have indicated a growing determination on the part of democratic leaders of congress to pass a tariff bill and wind up the work of the extra session without action upon currency reform or any other important subject.

The tariff revision bill is to be pushed to completion and laid before the democrats of the senate, in caucus, before the end of this week. In the meantime, notwithstanding President Wilson's repeatedly expressed desire to see some positive action taken toward a reform of the nation's financial system, the controlling forces of the party in both houses are showing a disposition to defer action on monetary reform until the regular session opening next December.

Wilson Is Opposed.

A session of the senate currency committee last week and the open antagonism voiced by Representative Henry, of Texas, against present action have served to emphasize the opposition that has developed within the party ranks, against the president's program of immediate action. While the senate committee took no definite action, many members, including influential democrats, openly expressed the opinion that no currency law would be enacted at this session.

The tariff is to come into the senate for the second stage of revision within ten days.

The senate finance committee will complete work upon it next week and then immediate call will be issued for a democratic caucus. It is believed the bill will be formally presented to the senate ready for debate in that body, by Wednesday, June 25.

The Arbitration Treaties.

The arbitration treaties sent in some time ago, extending existing agreements with Great Britain and several other countries, have not been touched in the senate for nearly ten days. In the meantime the president and Secretary Bryan are understood to have urged Senators Chamberlain and O'Gorman to withdraw their opposition to the British treaty and allow its ratification.

Both senators have stated openly within the last few days, however, that they do not withdraw their active opposition, or permit the extension of the British arbitration pact, unless it is forced upon them by a two-thirds vote of the senate. Their opposition is based upon the belief that the United Staes should not again bind itself to a treaty which Great Britain construes as forcing this country to submit the Panama canal dispute to arbitration. If the British treaty is not disposed of, both senators demand that a clause be inserted expressly exempting the Panama canal toll question as a subject of arbitration.

This will be a busy week among the democrats of the senate, in charge of the tariff bill. Beginning tomorrow morning Senator Simmons, chairman of the finance committee, will apply the prod to his colleagues and insist upon results. The majority members of the finance committee will meet all day and late into the night passed on sub-committee reports. Last week in four days the committee approved about half of the bill with the changes made by the sub-committees, and Senator Simmons proposes that the committee complete the rest of the measure by Wednesday night. Then will come the caucus of the democratic senators.

Administrative Tariff Clauses.

Today Senator Williams' sub-committee, the hardest worked of them all, labored until a late hour putting the finishing touches on the administrative provisions of the bill, and the income tax. They will report tomorrow. The Underwood bill administrative reforms, it is known, have been greatly altered by this sub-committee. The clause granting a five per cent flat discount on tariff imports in American-owned or controlled ships has been stricken out; the anti-dumping clause which would have exacted penalty duties on undersold foreign goods in American markets has been greatly eliminated because of its alleged impracticability and a challenge to retaliation; the inquisitorial clause, objected to by foreign nations has been greatly modified and may be eliminated, and the features designed by the ways and means committee to prevent undervaluations have been revised.

In re-adjusting the administrative clauses, the subcommittee has had the aid of Secretary McAdoo, Assistant Secretary Curtis and Assistant Attorney General Denison. Many suggestions from these department heads have been accepted by the subcommittee in whipping into shape tariff regulations which will be acceptable to the foreign powers, without weakening the hand of the United States.

Stupendous Work.

"To readjust these administrative clauses," Chairman Simmons said today, has been a stupendous work and the majority members have conferred with the subcommittee several times in outlining the proposals. I believe now that the way is cleared so that there will be few problems to be met in the caucus.

"It is probable that the full text of the bill as approved by the finance committee majority will not be made public before the caucus. We feel that the caucus should consider the recommendations of the committee and act thereon before we publish the bill, because the caucus may make changes, and, after all, it is the caucus measure which goes to the senate.

"I do not believe that there will be much trouble in the caucus. All the big problems in the tariff which confronted the party in the senate have been settled as the preliminary consideration has proceeded. I look for few alterations of the committee bill, and do not expect the caucus will consume more than a week's time."

The fight over free wood and free sugar, so far as the democrats are concerned, is believed to be over by the administration leaders. Senators Randell, Thornton, of Louisiana, and Walsh, of Montana, are the only democratic senators it now is believed who will refrain from taking the caucus pledge. Even Senator Walsh might support the bill, some of his friends declare, after it is apparent that he has done everything in his power to have a small duty put on raw wool.

Little Currency Enthusiasm.

There is but little enthusiasm in either house over the administration move for currency legislation at this session. In the senate there is even grave doubt of the banking and currency committee agreeing upon a currency bill at this extra session, despite the insistence of chairman Owen that currency legislation is imperative. In the house Chairman Glass, so far, is the only member who has evinced any determination to press currency reform before the regular December session.

Democratic Leader Underwood has not been in favor of currency legislation at the extra session, but his disposition to have the democratic majority in the house act in harmony with the president as far as possible in the interest of party unity.

Mr. Glass expects to start the currency machinery in motion by introducing a bill next Tuesday that he believes will represent the composite views of President Wilson, Secretary McAdoo, Chairman Owen, of the senate committee, and himself. If this plan is carried out, the house committee on banking and currency will get together for a preliminary consideration of the question on Wednesday or Thursday, when the Bulkley subcommittee also will report in favor of open sessions while currency reform is under consideration in the committee.

For the Next Campaign.

The campaign organizations of the democrats and republicans in the house will soon take steps to organize for the next campaign. There are contests on for chairmanship of both. Of the republicans, Acting Chairman Burke, of South Dakota, whom Republican Leader Mann favors for the post, Representative Gardner, of Massachusetts, and others have been mentioned for the chairmanship.

Despite several attempts to choose a chairman of the democratic congressional committee, sentiment has not as yet crystallized and the meeting of the committee on June 23 bids fair to be a lively one. Representative Lloyd, of Missouri, who has headed the democratic committee for several campaigns, is still temporary chairman, but while in a receptive mood, he has declined to enter into a fight for the office. Representatives Doremus, of Michigan, Cline, of Indiana, and Sabath, of Illinois, have been suggested for the job.

JOSEPH MORRIS DIES AT HOME OF BROTHER

Joseph A. Morris, aged 61 years, for many years a prominent grocery merchant of Atlanta, died last night at 8 o'clock, at the home of his brother, N. C. Morris, 121 Forrest avenue. He is survived by his wife; three brothers M. C. Morris, of this city, and J. H. and T. S. Morris, of Texas; two sisters, Mrs. William Boyd, of Forrest Park, Ga., and Mrs. H. C. Bond, of Ellenwood, Ga.

For the past few years Mr. Morris had made his home at Clarkston, Ga., but recently came to Atlanta to his brother's home, where he died.

The funeral services will be conducted at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning at Cedar Grove church, near Conley, Ga., the Masonic lodge of Clarkston, being in charge. Interment will follow in the church yard.

"Home Sweet Home" Stirs Hearts of Street Audience

An old woman in black stood at the corner of Broad and Marietta streets Saturday night and played the "Miserere" from Verdi's "Il Trovatore," on a squeaky violin.

Several loafers stopped for a moment and leered, while the cigarette smoke curled in their faces.

"Gee, what's that sob stuff she's tryin' to pull on us," one asked. "That ain't got nothin' on the 'snookey ookums' rag."

A few more passersby joined the throng, and soon many were listening. Then an auto drove up, and stopped on the edge of the throng. Three men and one woman were in it. The latter was pretty, but with a tired look on her face—the look that comes from life's boredom.

The old woman finished the "Miserere," with a faint flourish and then passed a little tin cup. A few small coins were her reward—and the gentleman who was smoking a cigarette and preferred "snookey ookums" didn't see it.

Encouraged by her small success, the little old figure in black broke in a familiar strain, "Home, Sweet Home." And then the miracle happened.

For on the edge of the crowd, seated in the high-powered machine, a strong, rich soprano was heard, singing the plaintive notes of Payne's world-famous song.

The crowd turned, and looked. The pretty women, with the tired look on her face, had arisen and was singing from the tonneau. The men with her did not know what to say—and so did nothing.

Verse after verse of the plaintive melody she sang and men and women from everywhere drew closer. And the little woman in black followed her on the squeaky violin.

Women with hardened faces, men with coarse features stopped for the moment—and those of refinement pressed closer—many of whom had not seen their own "home" for years.

Then she finished. There was a moment of silence, and then applause. Before the men in the machine could stop her, she had stepped out, taking one of her companion's straw hats with her. Standing on the step of the machine, she held it out, with a faint gesture toward the violinist.

Men who refused the little tin cup could not pass the straw up. Dimes, quarters and halves, with a sprinkling of paper money were thrust in the hat, men vieing with one another to part with their coin.

Then the woman with the tired look on her face pressed through the crowd, emptied the contents of the hat into the little tin cup, filling it to overflowing.

In a moment more she had driven off with her companions in the machine.

$200,000 STRUCTURE FOR NEGRO Y. M. C. A.

Chicago, June 15.—Booker T. Washington, the negro educator, speaking here today at the dedication of Chicago's $200,000 Y. M. C. A. for negroes, referred to the city's 50,000 "black men," saying that through the influence it had on them the institution would be of great civic benefit.

"Anything that makes for less drinking, less gambling, less idling and less association with bad characters is a helpful thing," he said.

Julius Rosenwald, whose gift of $25,000 was the nucleus of the building funds, in his address, remarked that he, "a Jew, was rather startled when asked for money to promote the Christian religion," but he added, having decided "to give to Africans" he soon concluded to prefer those in Chicago.

HE WON HORSE RACE AND THEN FLEW AWAY

Berlin, June 15.—Lieutenant Von Egan Kreiger, of the first Hussars, a well-known gentleman jockey, won the first race at Madgeburg today and then mounted his aeroplane and flew to Berlin. He landed in the middle of the Crunewald race course, ran to the scales and weighed. Then he immediately mounted his horse, which was entered in the fifth race, and won handily. Madgeburg is seventy-six miles distant from Berlin.

PRIZE PEACH EXHIBIT MADE BY CUNNINGHAM

That the late cold spell did not kill all the peaches in Georgia was proven last night by John D. Cunningham, of Marietta, Ga., who brought one of the prize peach exhibits of the state to The Constitution office.

Two peach tree branches, each twenty inches long, with seventeen peaches each on them—large, juicy looking peaches, ripe and ready to eat—were shown.

Mr. Cunningham's orchard has a few trees of this variety—the Dixie Queen—introduced from Texas into this section a year or so ago by Moor & Co. While a large amount of the Elberta crop has been killed, the Dixie Queen does not seem to have been injured at all, it is said, owing to the fact that while it is an early peach, it blooms late, and then matures faster than most varieties of Georgia peaches.

Only a few of the Dixie Queen trees, comparatively speaking, have been introduced into Georgia, but if the rest prove as satisfactory as these, Georgia may find a remedy in them for the annual frosts which formerly have worked so much damage to the fruit growers of the state.

"Blue Tag" Furniture Sale

True to the Best Traditions of Any That Have Gone Before

A Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. "Blue Tag" Furniture Sale!

To Atlantans who recall the fine economies of "The Blue Tag" sales the mere announcement that here now is another would doubtless be sufficient to hurry them to the store bright and early this morning filled with the confidence that this is their opportunity to buy furniture to great advantage.

But this "Blue Tag" sale is planned to outdo all others!

Yes, to outdo ALL others. It has not been an easy task to prepare such a sale; the records and traditions of the others mark them as trade triumphs—as classics in the furniture business; but the guiding spirit of progress whispers that this one shall begin where the others left off and become a monumental merchandise movement only after it eclipses its predecessors.

And so have the preparations gone forward!

Judge for yourself the possibilities it offers you.

Here is the South's greatest furniture stock.

Every piece of it was chosen after careful, very careful examination as the best of its kind for regular selling.

It is worthy furniture, right furniture, built to last year on year.

And Right Now

Every piece of furniture, excepting summer furniture and several makes the prices of which we have contracted to maintain, in this, the South's greatest stock, is offered at a substantial reduction from its regular price.

In some instances the saving is 10 per cent, in others it is 25 per cent; in still others it is still more.

And this in face of the fact that right now furniture prices are climbing to higher levels.

So whether it be—

Bedroom—Including Brass Beds—Dining Room or Living Room Furniture

Or all of these that you need—and in this month of brides and of new home-making there are many who will want furnishings for entire homes—now is the big opportunity. The tremendous varieties here mean that you may select to a nicety just the furniture you would have in your home. The tremendous reductions mean that you may save as you had never expected.

So come this morning. You will find the Blue Tags on everything; they tell their own story and it is an interesting story of fine savings.

Period Furniture

It is worthy of particular note in this noteworthy event that, although every little separate chair, rocker, desk, table, chiffonier and the like in stock (with those exceptions already noted) is included, some of the healthiest reductions have been made on the rich and true sets of Period Furniture and reproductions of antique pieces—Sheraton, Jacobean, William and Mary, Chippendale and others. Sets for bedroom, dining room and living room.

INFLUENZA IS NOT HARMLESS DISEASE

Real Old Grip May Have Many Dangerous Complications, Says Health Board.

When influenza, commonly called La-Grippe or just plain old "grip," went around the world in 1889-90, many were inclined to look upon it as a harmless kind of fashionable disease, a viewpoint that was speedily changed in those localities where hospitals became charnel houses, though this reputation clung to it more or less strenuously for some years.

But its dangerous qualities have long since become well known as a result of the numerous and serious complications which may attend it; in fact, there is scarcely any organ of the body which is immune from the effects of it. And although it now appears in milder form in the sporadic or epidemic cases than in the pandemic invasion which went around the world, it is particularly severe and dangerous, says the Georgia state board of health, for old persons, and for persons who are debilitated or weak, persons given to alcoholic liquors, those who are too fat and those suffering from heart and lung troubles.

Influenza is an acute infectious disease caused by what is known as the bacillus of Pfeiffer, after the name of its discoverer in 1892. It may be communicated either by association with persons affected or through inhalations in sections where it is or has been prevalent. It has been known to be contracted at sea where there was no existing case, lending color to the belief that the germ travels through the air. It occurs either in isolated cases, in epidemics or pandemics.

Travels Around the World.

During the last century there were four periods during which practically every country in the world suffered from the unusual prevalence of this disease. The last pandemic occurred in 1889-91. It started in Russia and soon spread to Germany and England. Later it appeared in New York and rapidly spread over North America. Soon practically the entire civilized world was affected. Since that time influenza has been constantly present in the United States, but in milder form.

Influenza is one of the medical "goats," and not infrequently the incipient stages of tuberculosis, malaria, ulcerated endocarditis and typhoid fever are mistaken for it.

Grip may develop very suddenly, as a rule in one to seven days. The germs, gaining entrance to the respiratory tract, multiply very rapidly. All ages are susceptible to the disease, though infants under one year old are seldom attacked. The greatest prevalence of the disease is during the winter and spring, a deficiency of sunlight seems favorable to the growth of the germs. One attack does not confer immunity but seems to predispose to other, though subsequent attacks are not usually as severe. The danger lies not so much in the disease itself as in the complication which it may induce. Frequently it predisposes one to an attack of tuberculosis; it may set in action tubercular germs which have been lying dormant. A frequent accompaniment of influenza is influenza-pneumonia, differing from ordinary pneumonia in that it rarely terminates in a crisis, usually dragging on for weeks. Other complications are congestion of the kidneys and other organs, diseases of the heart and blood vessels, diseases of the ear and affections of the nervous system.

Symptoms of Influenza.

Grip may come on very suddenly, noticed first in chilly sensations followed by a fever which may reach 105 degrees, loss of appetite, headache pain in the limbs and then a sense of utter wretchedness. Lassitude, a cough, insomnia and a flushing of parts of the face as in scarlatina, may accompany it. The patient feels and seems desperately ill. Bronchitis frequently develops, accompanied by pains in the chest, and may be followed by pneumonia. The patient becomes profoundly depressed, the heart action may be feeble, the skin relaxed and clammy, hot and dry. Pneumonia and heart failure are the most frequent causes of death following an attack of influenza.

Meningitis, a particularly dangerous complication, may also be caused by the influenza bacillus. Nervous forms of the disease are quite common, varying all the way from simple restlessness to paralysis and insanity. Of 29,000 cases analyzed by Lee, 7,000 were of a nervous type.

Influenza being highly contagious, it is of great importance that persons suffering from it should be isolated, and all precautions taken to prevent its spread. The patient should have separate dishes, which should be sterilized in boiling water each time they are used. All linen and body clothing used by the patient should be thoroughly boiled or soaked in a 5 per cent solution of carbolic acid before being sent to the laundry.

As to treatment the most important thing to emphasize is that the patient should be treated by a competent physician. Even in the mildest cases the patient should go to bed, as rest is the best possible treatment for the disease. There is no specific remedy for influenza. Many drugs have been used often with good effect, at other times with varying degrees of success, but these should always be administered under the direction of a careful physician. Warm baths are considered helpful, and as a general rule severe caution is given against the use of alcoholic stimulants. In the case of complications arising from influenza, such diseases should be treated in accordance with usual methods and always under the direction of a competent physician.

MRS. HUDSON LEAVES SOON TO STUDY FOR THE STAGE

MRS. WILLIE HUDSON.

Mrs. Willie Hudson, who was recently granted a final divorce decree, will leave within a few weeks for New York, where she will study for the vaudeville stage.

She is confident that it will not take her long to prepare for an entrance and believes that success will crown her efforts when before the footlights.

Mrs. Hudson, who is a most attractive blonde, has a good voice and is conceded to be a clever dancer. As looks and ability to dance and sing are the three big requisites on the vaudeville stage, her friends are of the opinion that once she has a good opening she will more than make good.

"I am going to New York to take advantage of the best opportunity opening to me," said Mrs. Hudson. "At present I am inclined to vaudeville, because I believe it offers the biggest immediate return, but if the chances should be better in the legitimate or in musical comedy, either would suit me as well."

Gain of 1,633 Over Last Year Is Made by 20 Sunday Schools

Yesterday proved a day of splendid gains for the Sunday schools of Atlanta that are entered in the attendance exchange plan, the figures as announced by twenty Sunday schools rising to 1,633 more than the attendance figures for the same day a year ago.

The total number present in the twenty schools was 6,690, or an average of 334 people in each school. The figures for the same schools last year came to a total of 5,057—an average of only 252—and therefore the increase for the year amounts to an average of 82 people for all the Sunday schools in the list.

With the arrival of good summer weather, many schools are laying plans for picnics in the near future, this being the season looked forward to with great anticipation by a large element in the Sunday schools.

Picnics This Week.

Two picnics are planned for this week. The joint picnic of the Second Baptist and the First Christian Sunday schools will be held Tuesday afternoon and evening at Grant Park. Beginning at 2:30 o'clock, the people of the two schools will gather for an afternoon of games and outdoor sports, including baseball and various kinds of races, and the big picnic dinner will take place at 6 o'clock in the evening.

The picnic is not to be the payment of a contest debt. The forfeit feature of the contest between the two schools was eliminated when the contest was half over. Every family attending the picnic, from both schools, will bring their own well-filled baskets of lunch, and a committee will take all the baskets in charge and spread the picnic dinner out upon the tables to be enjoyed by the several thousand people who are expected.

Another picnic of the week will be that of the Central Presbyterian Sunday school, which will take place at Powder Springs next Thursday. This will be an all-day excursion and is looked forward to with great anticipation of the large membership of this school.

UNIQUE GROUP WORK BY CITY DISTRICTS PLANNED BY OGDEN

By a unique idea proposed Sunday by Dr. Dunbar Ogden, the Central Presbyterian church is now laying plans to carry its pastoral work into every section of the city during the usually dull summer months.

The entire city of Atlanta will be divided into districts and a well-known church worker living in that section appointed as the church member in charge of that group. Acting as an assistant to the pastor, the person in charge will be expected to visit or keep in touch with every member living in that section, and to report to the pastor the conditions, troubles of people, etc.

Many pastors have found it extremely difficult to keep in touch with their pastorates during the summer months, and the new plan is believed to be one of the best ever advanced to accomplish this end. The Central Presbyterian church of Atlanta is declared to be the largest Presbyterian congregation in the south, having a membership of 1,246 people, and hence it is a peculiarly difficult problem to keep this large body together during the summer, when so many people make the plea of "hot weather" and stay at home from church.

"Toward the end of the summer, after the group system has gotten into smooth operation, we will plan a series of meetings, in which the pastor will go from one district to another holding cottage gatherings with the groups," said Dr. Ogden in outlining the proposition Sunday morning. This will probably be one of the most interesting features of the plan. Dr. Ogden's outline of the new pastorate plan preceded a splendid parable sermon on "Our Debts and Our Debtors."

POWER COMPANIES IN AMERICUS TO UNITE

Americus, Ga., June 15.—(Special.)—Complete consolidation of properties of the Americus Power company and the Americus Gas and Electric company will result about July 1, the Americus Power company taking over properties of the rival company and controlling the situation locally. Agreement to this effect was reached at a conference of officials of the Americus Power company and northern bond holders of the other corporation held the past week in New York, the result of which was announced officially here today.

Both corporations have new and modern electric plants, with combined capitalization of probably $300,000 and have been active competitors for local business. Americus business men will control entirely the consolidated interests.

PROMINENT WOMAN DIES IN LAGRANGE

LaGrange, Ga., June 15.—(Special). The funeral Friday afternoon of Mrs. Judge F. M. Longley, who died on Wednesday, was one of the most impressive funerals ever held in LaGrange.

The floral offerings, which came not only from LaGrange people, but also from various parts of the state, were widely commented upon and were the most beautiful seen in LaGrange for many years.

Mrs. Longley was the wife of Judge F. M. Longley, was 60 years of age, and was known far and wide for her good works. Her friends are scattered all over the south, and they join with the bereaved family in their loss.

The main living relatives of Mrs. Longley are her husband; her son, Colonel F. P. Longley, of LaGrange; her son, Fuller E. Longley, of Waco, Tex., and her son, Colonel E. S. Longley, of Muskogee, Okla.

A Sermon That Pays.

Perhaps the highest price paid for a sermon goes every year to a German preacher, who discourses on the good deeds of a French baron named Fasart, who died in Elberfeld in 1690. Fasart left money for the purpose, and the interest now amounts to $4,500 a year, which goes to the preacher as his reward.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Excursion, Tybee, Jacksonville, Atlantic Beach, $6; Tampa, $8; round trip—June 20th. Ask the ticket agent, Central of Georgia Railway.

COTTON AND THE BANKER.

How the bankers of the south may aid the section in throwing off the yoke of the single crop system, and that crop cotton, was described in a recent issue of The Constitution by W. H. White, Jr., of Atlanta. Mr. White is president of the White Provision company. That company has constructed and operates on the outskirts of Atlanta the most modern packing house in the southern states. Mr. White declares that the plant was built upon the encouragement of The Constitution, but in the face of pessimistic prophecies from many other sources. It has, he says, paid good yearly dividends and is consuming five times as much Georgia-raised cattle as at its inauguration three years ago.

Mr. White's contention is that the banker is at the apex of the south's agricultural system. His decree controls what is and is not planted. Ever since the war, Mr. White declares, the banker has stipulated that cotton be the collateral for farm credits. His word has gone on down to the country bank, and by it been passed on to the small country merchant, who requires that in exchange for credit for mules, implements, food and what not, the farmer must plant in cotton.

"Where is the justice," asks Mr. White, "of blaming the farmer for the indebtedness we are piling up through exclusive devotion to cotton, and for the loss of fortune in ignoring diversification, when he is powerless to correct the situation? It is the banker who is at fault, and matters will remain as they are until reform comes from this direction." Mr. White's theory is that the introduction of the cattle and sheep industry, the latter in the Blue Ridge section of Georgia, would solve this problem. He points out that Georgia is ideally adapted to these industries. And, he says, cattle and sheep could be raised without diminishing the supply of cotton, but by positively increasing the ease and lessening the cost under which it is now produced. Cattle and sheep command as good a cash market as cotton, he claims. The smallest farmer could, within three years, have a herd large enough to permit the sale annually of enough cattle to finance his farming operations without going into debt.

Whether Georgia shall or shall not develop these industries and this emancipation from the one-crop bogie depends, according to Mr. White, on the bankers. If they will broaden the basis of credit, and if the country banker and merchant will require the farmer to devote at least a part of his energies to cattle-raising, we will soon leave the present conditions behind. It will be remembered that Benjamin W. Hunt, ex-president of the Georgia State Bankers' association, and Joseph A. McCord, vice president of the Third National Bank of Atlanta, have advanced very similar reasoning in their contributions to The Constitution. Georgia bankers generally will do well to ponder the words of these gentlemen.

THE MAXIMUM HIGHWAY.

In his recent European letter to The Constitution, Harvie Jordan, of Atlanta, gives the following significant description of the highways of Italy:

> The roadways of Italy are very fine and kept by the government in splendid condition. I traveled for fifteen miles over one of these public highways which was originally built as a military road and used by the Roman legions a thousand years ago. Over these roads a yoke of oxen will pull a two-wheeled cart loaded with five tons of produce from the farm to the market, this is equal to twenty bales of cotton, or four-fifths of an ordinary carload of cotton.

The European road thus eulogized by Mr. Jordan is entirely typical of the old world. They believe in building maximum highways on the other side of the ocean; that is, highways that will permit the carrying of maximum loads. Highways of this class have been a big factor in the civilization of Europe. Indeed, from the days of the Roman conquerors, and before, it was the good road that meant the joining of a people to the then existing civilization. Its absence meant that the people thus afflicted remained indefinitely in the status of barbarity. Caesar gridironed Europe with splendid boulevards. Napoleon performed the same service for France. These mighty thoroughfares were constructed originally for military use. But serving for the rapid transportation of great bodies of troops, they also served for transporting raw products and manufactured commodities, thus accelerating development in every channel.

The highway system which Europe has gradually built up on this foundation helps materially to make the cost of living cheaper there than in this country. Suppose that in Georgia we had such a road as this road Harvie Jordan encountered in Italy. That would mean that a single team of mules could haul to market at one time twenty bales of cotton. The maximum load of cotton now, on the very best of roads, averages five bales. In other words, over an European road the Georgia farmer could haul his cotton, and other produce, and save the wear and tear and time of four loads. The aggregate saving at the end of the year would mount into the hundreds of millions of dollars for the United States. The first cost of the road and the cost of maintenance would soon be absorbed.

This little object lesson serves to show at a glance the ultimate profit in decent highways. We are as yet a long way from the maximum road, according to the standards of the old world, but if expressed sentiment counts for anything we are making rapid progress.

WANTED---A POET LAUREATE.

Will Alfred Austin have a successor as poet laureate of England, or will the office lapse with his death? A good many Britishers as well as men of letters throughout the world are now asking that question. Many of the Bourbon element in England are insisting that tradition be preserved and a laureate be appointed in the place of Austin. If it were left to a vote of men who follow literature it is probable there would be an almost unanimous verdict in favor of abolishing a distinction that in our day has become meaningless.

At best, the laureateship has been ornamental. It accounted for little when the occupant came into contact with other poets, and notably it was a source of embarrassment if he were a "mere jigging rhymster" instead of a singer of the highest order. The business of being crowned official poet, charged assumably with celebrating any great national event to order, was a strain under which all but the most mechanical order of genius would break down.

In the case of Austin, for example, the poet is likely to have been more a trial than of honor. He would probably himself have admitted that he did not possess the "divine afflatus" in marked measure, and that the criticisms heaped upon his efforts were a constant source of humiliation.

The idea, for instance, of comparing his meager verse with the robust and ringing lines of Kipling is absurd on the face of it. And as far as comparisons go there was as great a gulf between the genius of Swinburne, audacious and iconoclastic as it was, as between noon and midnight. The stolid British government which, for reasons of policy, did not choose to lean toward either Swinburne or Kipling, may not have been cognizant of these incongruities; but the intelligent student of literature was, and the result by no means added to the dignity of the empire.

The sensible procedure seems to be to let the office of laureate lapse through disuse, and depend upon poetical genius driven by the inspiration of the moment to serve the country's needs and glories. We should like to see the American government propose the installation of a poet laureate. That unhappy individual would be submerged by a chorus of barbed humor before he could get in the trolley to ride to the treasury and cash his first check.

SIDNEY H. PHELAN.

The death of Sidney H. Phelan will be universally regretted by all those who knew the man.

Few men of his time possessed to a greater degree the faculty of drawing others to him, and he did it by never letting anyone else do for him more than he was ever ready to do for them. No task was too hard for him to undertake for a friend and no length was too great for him to go when duty called. Few will ever know of the many good things done by him for the cause of charity or to alleviate the distress of suffering humanity. The Constitution knows—because it knew the man, and it recalls the blizzardy Christmas of nearly a quarter of a century ago when in response to the call for help for the suffering he manned a two-horse wagon and with the reins in his own hands drove until long after midnight through the beating snow to the doors of the poor with his substantial greeting of comfort in the guarantee of food and fire to many a cheerless home. And that was Sid Phelan then—and thereafter! Always the same.

No warmer heart than his ever beat in a man's bosom—no more loyal nor earnest a crusader ever followed the banner of a friend's cause.

Such a man will be missed!

Here he interrupted her.

"I didn't catch even a minnow," he said, "so I wasn't pulled into the river; and you ought to know that I'm too blamed careful ever to smash a jug with a gallon in it!"

"Why didn't you tell me that at first," she said, "instead of waiting all this time?"

A Different Process.

A correspondent of The Dalton Citizen tells this one:

"A big colored Baptist revival was in progress near Valdosta. Mourners were going up by the score to be prayed for. The parson was loudly calling for sinners to come up and 'be washed as white as snow,' one apparently stubborn old darkey refused the invitation persistently. Being prominent in colored circles the parson was anxious to line him up. 'Brudder Smith,' exclaimed the parson, 'won't you come up and have your sins washed white as snow?' Brother Smith slowly rose to his feet and replied that his sins had recently been washed as white as snow at a Methodist revival. The parson was stumped for a moment, but quickly rejoined: 'Brudder Smith, you'se not been washed white as snow; you'se jess been dry cleaned.'"

A Story of the Moment

By WALT MASON
The Famous Prose Poet

Winning Ways.

(Copyright, 1913, for The Constitution.)

"I think Grimshaw carries the gloomiest face I ever saw," remarked the assessor. "As a consequence he has few friends. You never see anybody walking with him on the street. He's always alone. They say he's an excellent citizen, and so it seems a pity he's such a frost. He'd have more friends if he cultivated a cheerful expression."

"Yes, and he'd encounter more bores," said the village patriarch. "I always have championed the sunny smile, and have tried to wear one right along, and now that I am old I often wonder whether it wasn't a mistaken policy. As a result of the benign expression on my face, I have suffered unspeakable agonies in the parlor, for every man with a funny story to tell always wanted to spring it on me the first thing. I detest funny stories, largely because they are not funny, and also because the people who narrate them never know how to tell funny stories. The people who really could tell such yarns as they should be told, have more important things to attend to.

"I can't imagine a bore approaching Grimshaw with a funny story. I don't suppose he ever listened to one in his life. So you see how much suffering he has been spared because he looks like a killing frost on the 32d of November. Then he is spared all those cheap familiarities which annoy so many of us who wear glad smiles. Nobody slaps him on the back, or takes cigars out of his vest pocket or pushes his hat down over his ears. One look at his somber countenance would discourage the freshest aleck in town. The alecks always have pestered me abominably taking such liberties as I have mentioned, and the fact is no doubt due to the angelic smile I wear.

"When a man gets into the habit of looking pleased and optimistic he can't break away from it. His smile becomes a permanent fixture, as much as the redness in the end of his nose. This is bad enough at home, where it is a standing jollion to fresh people and story tellers and all manner of bores, but it is much worse among strangers. Every time I go to another town I begin to wish I could have my face remodeled, and equipped with a forbidding scowl. For people take it for granted as soon as they see me that I am trying to sell something that nobody wants.

"The last time I was over to Squashville I walked out to the suburbs to see an old friend and couldn't locate his house. So I stepped up to a lady who was tinkering around in her front yard, intending to ask her where Emanuel Tinkleheff lived, but before I could utter a word she was shaking her fist in my face, and telling me to make myself scarce before she sent for the police, for she absolutely refused to be annoyed by agents any more. I don't care whether you're selling a duplex washing machine or a patent electric churn,' said she, 'I won't spend a cent with you, and I don't want to hear a word out of your mouth. I've been bothered and badgered and bullyragged by agents,' said she, 'until flesh and blood can endure it no longer.' Then she went for me with a hoe and I vaulted over the front gate with an agility surprising in one of my years.

"I walked about a block and then I met a clergyman, and I stopped him and began to as khim where Emanuel Tinkleheff lived, but he stopped me before I had uttered three words. 'Go and mend your ways, you child of Belial,' said that reverend man. 'If I am not mistaken you are the same hoary malefactor who sold me an encyclopaedia in 148 volumes, to be paid for at the rate of $2 a month for twenty-seven years, and when the books came there were so badly printed that I couldn't read a line. I am a meek and humble laborer in the vineyard,' said he, 'and cannot well imbrue my hands in blood, but you'd better flee before I lose control of my temper.'

"Even then I stopped long enough I was an agent or a candidate for office, and nobody would listen to me. They all said the police should be rebuked for permitting me to prey upon the community. Now, my friends, such things never would happen to Grimshaw. If he went up to a stranger with that frozen face of his, the stranger would take off his hat and kotow to him. So I am inclined to think that Grimshaw's frontispiece is an asset rather than a liability."

Before the Rain.

The blackcaps pipe among the reeds,
And there'll be rain to follow;
There is a murmur as of wind
In every cough and hollow;
The wrens do chatter of their fears
While swinging on the barley ears.

Come, hurry, while there yet is time,
Pull up thy scarlet bonnet.
Now, sweetheart, as my love is thine,
There is a drop upon it.
So trip it ere the storm-bag weird
Doth pluck the barley by the beard.

Lo! not a whit too soon we're housed;
The storm-witch yells above us!
The branches rapping on the panes
Seem not in truth to love us.
And look where through the clover bush
The nimble-footed rain doth rush!

—Amelie Troubetzkoy.

The Average Man.

It was bleached and bronzed by the sun,
His face had the grimness of granite;
Like the coat on his poor, narrow shoulders;
And his hands showed the work he had done.
His dim eyes were weary and patient;
And he smiled through his pallor and tan
A wistful, sad smile, as if saying:
"I'm only an average man.

"I can't be a hero or poet,
Nor a dictator wearing a crown;
I'm only the hard-working servant
Of those set above me. I'm down;
I'm down, and it's no use complaining;
I'll get on the best way I can;
And one of these days'll come morning
And rest for the average man."

He wages all battles and wins them,
He builds all turrets that tower
Over walls of the city to tell
Of the rulers and priests of the hour.
Without him the general is helpless,
The earth but a place and a plan;
He moves all and clothes all and feeds all,
This sad-smiling average man.

Then I lifted my hand in a promise,
With teeth set close, and my breath
Held hard in my throat; and I uttered
A vow that shall outlive death.
I swear that the builder no longer
To me shall be less than the plan,
Henceforward be guerdron and glory
And hope for the average man.

The World's Mysteries

CZAR NICHOLAS' SILVER CHAIR

There are two striking mysteries connected with the life of Czar Nicholas I of Russia, which have never been solved. One is as to the cause of his death. It is noted in history that he died as the result of a slow fever, but there is considerable doubt as to this, and it is affirmed upon pretty good authority that he was poisoned, or that the administering of poison brought on the fever that finally killed him.

But of still more interest is the incident in connection with the silver armchair. In the days of Nicholas, the Russian ruler in the first half of the last century, it was customary, upon the anniversary of his coronation, to present to him a silver armchair. This was usually delivered at the palace on the morning of the coronation, and he always used it for the first time to receive the address of congratulations from the deputation. The year previous to his death, which occurred in March, 1855, the usual silver chair was delivered to the palace. The Emperor entered the reception room, followed by his court, and took up his position beside the silver chair.

He remained standing until the court chamberlain announced the approach of the deputies, and as they advanced toward him he made a move to be seated, but as he did so an aide-de-camp stepped forward and with his sword struck the seat of the chair a heavy blow. The Czar was amazed at his presumption only for a moment, for no sooner had his sword fallen heavily on the handsome silver than he noticed that the arms of the chair were thrown open and two sharp blades protruded, which would have cut him in two had he taken the seat as usual. The blow that was struck had released a secret spring.

The conduct of the aide surprised every one even more than the incident itself. Like all crimes connected with the Russian court the affair was hushed up and the investigation was conducted with so much secrecy that the outer world has never discovered what the result of the inquiry was. It is not likely that the aide had anything to do with the attempt to assassinate the Czar, but he must have had some knowledge or have received some warning that such an assassination would be attempted upon the occasion of the visit of the deputies. From some source or other he must have become acquainted with the chair trap that had been set for Nicholas, and fearing the wrath that would be visited upon him lost his nerve at the last moment and saved the Czar.

He may also have allowed the incident to proceed so far as to bring the life of the ruler so closely in jeopardy that by his act he would win favor and probably a high promotion. Naturally he was seized at once by the King's guards, but professed his innocence and said it was merely an inspiration that had prompted his act. His name was never revealed and if his act was rewarded by his monarch in what way has never become known; nor whether he lost his head for indulging in "inspirations."

As to Nicholas' death, the new Encyclopaedia Britannica states: "The stories leading from the center of Russia into the Crimea were marked by the bones of Russian dead. The revelation of his failure in the war against the British and French broke the spirit of the Iron Czar, and in the second of March, 1855, he threw away the life which a little ordinary care would have saved."

This gives no cause for his death, and, in fact, neither does any other source give a definite idea other than that he had worn out his energy in his long and exciting reign. But the assassin then, as now, was at work in Russia, and there is every reason to believe from the few facts known regarding his end that Nicholas I was poisoned, but how or by whom no one knows, as the particulars of anything that takes place in the palace of the Czar are most carefully suppressed.

THE MICROSCOPE.

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

(Copyright, 1913, for The Constitution.)

The microscope is the Columbus in the microbe world.

It is an instrument for making small things visible, a high powered annex to the human eye which has enabled man to pry into the secrets of Nature and ramble in vast fields of learning which could at one time have been successfully concealed under a fly speck.

Before the microscope was invented man could detect a pin point without sitting upon it, but that was all. With the aid of the microscope he can map a pin point into hills and valleys and can pursue bacilli over its rugged surface, counting their ribs and toes and investigating the parasites which feed upon them.

Before the microscope became all-powerful, the house fly was a harmless insect which was allowed to coast down the baby's nose with innocent abandon. Nowadays, however, whenever a microscopist catches a fly he takes a census of the microbes on its toes and usually discovers enough of them to stock a large orphan asylum with all the popular diseases of the day.

The microscope has introduced us to the staphlococci, the pneumococci, the ring-tailed and thousands of other breeds of microbes, all of whom were entirely unknown to fame a hundred years ago. With the aid of the microscope men are now spending their lives in vast fields of exploration on a grain of dust and getting hopelessly lost in the wastes of a drop of polluted well water.

The field of microscopy is being constantly enlarged and many wonderful feats will be performed in the next few years. An effort is now being made to detach the atom from the molecule and to count its corners. When this has been accomplished the pay of school teachers in the rural districts will be investigated and the republican electoral vote in the last election will be subjected to a searching analysis. The chance of the young man who attempts to become rich by winning the affection of a roulette dealer will be charted and some day an effort will be made to discover the soul of a mill owner who can't raise the wages of the women and children in his employ because he has to buy a new steam yacht. However, when asked to do this the microscope will probably explode with a loud report. There is a limit to everything.

After the Storm.

The golden sun had gone to rest;
The birds had ceased their song;
The colors faded from the west;
And dark clouds rolled along.

The thunder gave its threatening call,
And lightning streaked the sky;
Softly the rain began to fall;
Then torrents from on high.

But ere the morning broke anew,
The storm had gone its way;
The sun blazed through the walls of blue,
To make the perfect day.

Established New Record In Special Editions

(From The Houston Chronicle.)

For a year or two the newspapers were busy publishing altitude records made by the birdmen, but for some months the scene has shifted and a strong contest has been carried on between the newspapers themselves in the issuing of special editions.

One newspaper has carried off the prize for quantity, another for quality, another for beautiful illustrations, and so on all down the line. Limits have apparently been reached in the way of novelty and originality in these special editions, but it has remained for The Atlanta Constitution to combine all the good features and reject all the bad ones of its predecessors, and on June 4 to issue a special edition that places it beyond competition. The woman's edition of The Constitution, the work of the ladies of Georgia, is something wonderful. There are 126 pages, and not one that has even the suspicion of dullness about it.

The whole edition is the actual work of the ladies of Georgia, who for three months have been actively engaged in preparing for it. There were special writers, news reporters, staff correspondents, and everything in regular form and order, and the result is marvelous. Stripped of special features and viewed simply as a newspaper, the special is a better newspaper than the daily editions of The Constitution, and that is high praise.

The fact that Mr. W. L. Halstead, the business manager of The Constitution, was for two years business manager of The Chronicle, lends additional interest in the edition to Houston readers. Of course he deserves no credit for the woman's edition, and, even if he did, he would not get it.

Merits Praise.

(From The Pickens County Progress.)

The woman's edition of The Constitution, issued Wednesday, June 4, consisting of 126 pages, was all the talk at Jasper on its arrival. The women and The Constitution deserve praise.

Was a Marvel.

(From The Lavonia Times.)

The Ella White Memorial edition of The Atlanta Constitution was a marvel for magnitude and quality. The paper contained 126 pages and weighed a pound and thirteen ounces. It was gotten up by the Georgia Federation of Women's clubs and a part of the proceeds from the sale of advertising will be used as a foundation of a memorial fund in Georgia. The edition stands as a finished product. It is the completion of a monumental task and will be preserved by many for future reference.

Peril of the Tight Skirt.

(Washington dispatch Philadelphia Record.)

The crowd that frequents the soda fountain at the drug store at F and Fifteenth streets, just across from the treasury building, where women in their new gowns leave the street cars to begin the parade up fashionable F street, had a grand time for two hours Saturday. A barrel of sirup dropped from the tail end of a transfer wagon, the head of the barrel came out, and 50 gallons of juice covered 200 square feet of sidewalk. Five women, wearing tight-fitting skirts, went down almost in a heap when they struck the sirup. The tight skirts kept them from skating through as the men did. Soon an army of drug clerks were out "shooing" the people around the slick spot, and escorting those who fell into the store to have their clothes cleaned. Three men who dashed to the rescue of women lost their feet and went down with them. Twenty-six skirts and fourteen men's suits suffered.

Nor time's remorseless doom,

That gilds your glorious tomb.

SCIENCE ALIGNED WITH CHRISTIANITY

Two Truths Never Conflict, Rev. W. N. Ainsworth Tells Graduates in Baccalaureate Sermon at Georgia.

Athens, Ga., June 15.—(Special.)—Commencement Sunday at "Georgia" was marked with the usual "Georgia" sors, the governor and a former governin the chapel, where Rev. W. N. Ainsworth, of Macon, preached the baccalaureate sermon. The old stage was filled with gowned doctors and professors, the governor and a former governor, while numerous other distinguished guests were seated on either side of the platform. About sixty "reverend seniors" had seats of honor to the fore and the chapel was filled with visitors.

"Prove all things; hold fast that which is good," was the text of the able sermon delivered by the former president of Wesleyan college. The preacher stated that in this age of confusion, many new inventions and discoveries, novel hypotheses and new interpretations and theories there is bewilderment in many minds. The confusion has crept into religion, he said. Some believe that religion is not what it was once; the Bible is not the old book, and even the Christ has changed. Some have preached of conflict between science and christianity.

Christianity and science.

"True Christianity and true science are in league with each other," declared the preacher, "and only some hypothesis of science and some theory of religion are in opposition. Truth runs in parallel lines—never conflicting, and truth is the only authority.

"In the confusion those are to arrive at the truth. 'Prove all things and hold fast that which is good.' The allusion is to the universal traders' test of money paid to him, the last test being that of the crucible or the retort."

The preacher declared that Christianity in all the apostolic writings appealed to the reason, insisted on the use of the intellect, and taught that there is no faculty of mind or reason which is not to be the province of the King. "Every Christian should be a rationalist," the minister said, "a rationalist in the sense that he should employ his reasoning powers in the testing of all things—even his own faith."

Program for Monday.

Though the greater number of visitors to the University of Georgia commencement among the former students of the institution will be here Tuesday, Alumni Day, the exercises for Monday are among the most interesting of the entire commencement week.

The undergraduates will have the stage, in the morning with representatives from Tech, from Dahlonega, Milledgeville and Augusta here. the presentation of the fraternity university will be a great social event. In addition to the prize drill in the afternoon, and the champion debate and the delivery of Demosthenean and Phi Kappa diplomas, the revival of a fine old custom tonight will be important features.

The social events are also of interest today.—the Sphinx banquet and the junior hop being on the program for this evening.

Chancellor Barrow, of the University, has recommended to the board of trustees that a year's leave of absence be granted to Professor W. O. Payne, of the department of history, the coming year. It is understood that Professor Payne will take special post graduate work at Harvard. Leave of absence without pay was asked for Adjunct Professor S. M. Sadler, of the English department, also who will pursue some special work looking to a degree.

Professor S. V. Sanford, who has had a year's leave in order that he may finish his theses, will return by the first of September to take up his work in the department of English.

Local Eagles, Led by Drum Corps, Leave Tonight for Jacksonville

Atlanta aerie, 714, of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, will leave Atlanta this evening for Jacksonville, where the annual convention of this social and beneficial association will begin tomorrow, for a three days' session.

The Atlanta aerie, one hundred and fifty strong, accompanied by its drum corps of thirty, will go south in special coaches attached to Southern railway train No. 24, leaving the Terminal station at 9:20 o'clock. It will be the first appearance of the Eagle drum corps on the streets in their new uniforms and the itinerary from the aerie to the station has been mapped to pass The Constitution office, where it will stop long enough to give a serenade, the first the newly uniformed drummers have tendered.

The convention is to be made up of representatives from four southern states, the convention being known as that of the southeastern section of the organization. Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina and Florida compose the southeastern section of the organization, and the indications are that the Jacksonville convention will be splendidly attended.

UNCLE SAM SEEKING OWNERS OF GOLD AND SILVER BULLION

Washington, June 15.—More than a half century ago Uncle Sam was handed three bags of gold worth about $600, and he is still holding them. Some thirty years ago he was handed a bag of valuable silver bullion, and the owner has left it with him ever since. The gold and silver has been a great nuisance to the accounting office of the federal government.

Comptroller of the Treasury Downey has just decided It is a problem for congress.

In an effort to clear the accounts, George E. Roberts, director of the mint, appealed to the comptroller to know if he could convert it into the treasury to the credit of the men who presented it. The comptroller holds such a course would require an act of congress.

In 1856 H. J. Peters brought $127.87 worth of gold bullion to the San Francisco mint. In 1858, Joseph Baker presented $333.27, and in 1863 J. M. Souther handed over $156.96.

Each received a receipt and told to come back for a gold certificate as soon as the government ascertained the value of the bullion. They have never returned.

In 1882 Thomas F. Davis brought 50.50 ounces of silver bullion to the New York assay office to be made into fine silver bars, and has not been seen since.

THOUSANDS AT GRAVE OF MILITANT "MARTYR"

Morpeth, England, June 15.—A large delegation of suffragettes and thousands of spectators witnessed the interment today of the body of Emily Wilding Davison in St. Mary's Parish churchyard, Northumberland. Miss Davison was killed in an attempt to stop the King's horse on derby day, and her funeral at London yesterday was made the occasion of a great demonstration by suffragettes.

Today four white clad women led four black horses, attached to the open wagon on which the coffin rested. Another wagon loaded with wreaths followed, and then carriages with relatives.

PLUCKY FIGHT BALKS THREE HIGHWAYMEN

Joseph Franklin Saves Costly Diamond Pin After Battle With Robbers.

In a desperate battle with three highwaymen last night on Crumley street, between Washington and Pulliam, Joseph Franklin, a well-known wholesale grocer of 181 Washington street, was fired on three times and slightly wounded in the neck.

His plucky fight resulted in putting the robbers to rout. They obtained nothing. Five minutes later, two residents of Crumley street, R. M. Bond and his step-father, F. H. Hayes, of No. 225, who were attracted by the shots, captured, at the point of a Winchester rifle, a negro who was fleeing from the scene.

The captive was turned over to Officer Milam and Wood and then sent to police headquarters under suspicion of having been one of the would-up trio. He gave his name as Horace Pinkney, aged 22, a laborer, of the rear of 259 Richards on street. When caught, he held a handful of rocks, one of which he threw at his captors.

Franklin's wound was dressed in a nearby drug store and he returned home without having to go to a hospital. The injury, although painful, is not serious.

The attempted hold-up occurred about 5:30 o'clock. Mr. Franklin was walking to his Washington street home on the way from uptown. As he reached an alley midway between Washington and Pulliam streets, on Crumley, three men appeared. The largest leveled a gun on him and said: "Throw up your hands and keep quiet."

Mr. Franklin, not a costly diamond in his scarf. As the nearest of the robbers reacher for this valuable, he grabbed him by the throat and threw the negro to the sidewalk. A second of the trio pounced upon the grocer's man's back, throwing him to the ground.

Scrambling to his feet he broke away from the negroes and ran up Crumley street in direction of Washington. As he fled, three shots were fired. He felt a stinging sensation in back of his neck and traveled to the drugstore for medical aid. The wound was quickly patched up.

ENGLISH POLO PLAYERS WANT ANOTHER MATCH

Hempstead, N. Y., June 15.—As the challenging English polo team, defeated by so close a margin in yesterday's deciding match for the international trophy will leave for home on Thursday, a week earlier than had been intended, plans for a third match between the British players and the substitute American team have been solicited. Captains Ritson and Lockett will go to India to rejoin their regiments after a brief visit in England. Lord Wodehouse, the substitute British player, will remain in this country for some weeks, hunting game in the Rockies and in the Canadian northwest.

The English players took part in a practice game today on the John S. Phipps field at Westbury, and this will probably be their last appearance in the United States. Their ponies will be shipped next Saturday to England and sent to the estate of the Duke of Westminister.

William A. Hazard, secretary of the National Polo association, said today he would not be at all surprised to see another challenge come from Great Britain within the next two years, and possibly within a year.

"Owing to the close contest," said Mr. Herbert, president of the association, "the English players will not be satisfied until they return."

August Belmont, another devotee of polo, will give a farewell dinner to the departing Britishers tomorrow night at the Meadowbrook Hunt club.

Giles, assistant state agent in cooperation with the United States department of agriculture, and others.

Miss Lilla Forrest, canning club demonstrator for this district, will give a demonstration at which the girls of the Thomas County Canning club will be present.

JAPANESE HOLD MEETINGS OF PROTEST

The passage of the anti-alien land law by California has deeply stirred Japan and has resulted in many meetings of protest. The Japanese government, however, has discouraged these meetings, asserting that the questions at issue will be amicably settled.

DR. WHITE SUGGESTS USE OF DICTAGRAPH IN LOBBYIST PROBE

Upon the subject, "The Infallible Dictagraph," Dr. John E. White compared the instrument which has of late created much sensation locally, to the all-seeing eye of God, last night at the First Baptist church.

Dr. White pointed out that there would be a marked and wholesome change in the life of every man if every word he uttered were recorded by a dictagraph and published to the world.

The only direct reference he made to the practical use of the machine was to suggest its use in Washington as an aid to President Wilson in his investigation of the lobbyists.

EARTHQUAKES ROCKING PARTS OF BULGARIA

Sofia, June 15.—The earthquakes of yesterday were renewed today in many parts of Bulgaria. Two violent shocks occurred in the morning at Crabovia, where much damage was done.

The seismic disturbances at Tirona continued throughout Saturday, and the trembling of the earth had not ceased this morning. At that place many people were killed and churches and public and private buildings were seriously damaged. Thousands are homeless and destitute.

HE TOUCHED LIVE WIRE AND WAS ELECTROCUTED

Salisbury, N. C., June 15.—Lafayette Cox, aged 30, engaged in helping erect an automatic signal line for the Southern railway between Spencer and Charlotte, was electrocuted eight miles south of this city today by touching a live wire on a pole which he had climbed. Forty-four hundred volts passed through his body when he grasped the wire. His home was at Paw Creek, near Charlotte.

DECLARES BITTER WAR ON TURKEY BUZZARDS

Representative Pickett Charges Bird With Spreading Hog Cholera.

That the turkey buzzard is not the great public benefactor and friend of man that he has been credited with for a long time past is the conclusion reached by Representative D. C. Pickett, of Terrell county, who will introduce a bill into the house this summer looking to Mr. Buzzard's annihilation.

While war on hog cholera and not on the turkey buzzard will be the primary object of Mr. Pickett's measure, as the buzzard is, in his opinion, the greatest promoter of hog cholera in the world, that scavenger bird must go, too.

"It is a great mistake to pass laws for the protection of buzzards," said Mr. Pickett, discussing his proposed measure while passing through the city Sunday on his return from a northern trip to his home in Dawson. "I hardly know of a greater curse than farmers have to contend with than hog cholera, and your much lauded turkey buzzard is the most active purveyor of that disease that there is.

"I am going to introduce a bill this summer to require the burning or burying of the carcasses of all hogs dying with cholera, so that they may not be taken up by buzzards to scatter the disease to other localities. I believe that cholera may be eliminated in time by such a measure as that, with the saving of hundreds of thousands of dollars annually to the farmers of the state.

Take Protection From Buzzards.

"Incidentally I am going to seek to have whatever protection the law places on buzzards removed and the destruction of that filthy bird encouraged. Medical authorities say that he is more responsible for the spread of other diseases, both to men and animals, than the one I have mentioned. I have not made an investigation of the bird's activities in other directions, but I am certain that it is he and not other that is responsible for the spread of hog cholera and the consequent enormous losses to the farmers of the country."

BABY'S BODY FOUND IN A GARBAGE HEAP

Police Who Made the Discovery Believe That Child Was Choked to Death.

When a bundle, found in a garbage heap at Ivy and Auburn avenue, was unwrapped by Plain Clothes Policemen Green and McKibben Saturday night the body of a white baby, apparently six months of age, or older, was revealed.

It was sent to police headquarters, where Coroner Donehoo will hold an inquest some time today. An effort is being made to find the mother.

Finger prints on the throat indicate that the child had been choked to death. No clue has yet been found by the detectives to the person who placed the child on the heap.

Advertising drives the wheels of trade
In the Orient they bargain in the bazaars. They haggle and quarrel before they buy. They lose time, temper and energy and depart with their purchases feeling they've been cheated.
Here we know what we want and what it costs before we start. We read the ads and learn. Thus shopping is a pleasure and we buy intelligently, always getting full value for our money.
When A. T. Stewart instituted the one-price-to-all system in his store he advanced buying and selling from a confidence game to an honest transaction. Advertising the fact carried it still further along the road of progress.
Today the merchant whose prices are not plain to all and who does not advertise is regarded with suspicion. There must be something wrong, the people argue, and pass his door.
Come out of the dark and into the light through The Constitution. Let folks know your excuse for renting a store. If it's a good one, they'll help you pay the rent.

Alibis Here Today—Georgia Tennis Meet

EDITED BY Dick Jemison

WHIFFS

Not Unsuccessful.

THE WEEK road trip just ended cannot be termed an unsuccessful one. A team is not expected to do more than break even on a road trip. When they do better than that they are traveling at a most excellent pace. The Crackers won two out of three from Birmingham and lost two out of three to Chattanooga. Saturday's game would have gone on the right side of the ledger with a little better pitching and a little better luck.

Stand Alike.

THE BARONS and the Lookouts have faced the Crackers the same number of times this season and the result of the games have been identical. The Crackers have won eight games and lost three from each during the season to date.

Get the Habit.

WINNING streaks are sixty per cent habit and psychology. It's up to the Crackers to get the habit, if they hope to keep after the Gulls. It has been proven mathematically that when a team is imbued with the idea that it can win regularly it usually does. It is a mental condition that no one can exactly explain. Thought concentration as it were. If the Crackers would start thinking that they were going to win, continue to think so and let their mind dwell on it, the results would be surprising. Try it yourselves, boys, and see.

Leads League.

THE BIG POLE Cavelesky leads the Southern league pitchers now without dispute. To date he has won thirteen games and dropped but three a percentage of .813. We've got to hand it to him. The big fellow is pitching the greatest ball of his career. And the Lookouts play .20 per cent better ball when he is in the box. The Pole has won his last nine straight starts. But at that, he had the "break" on his side when he got away Saturday.

Practice More.

PAUL MUSSER must learn to locate that old plate. It takes practice to do it and Billy ought to run him through his paces until the masters control. With control Musser would be one of the most dangerous pitchers that a batter ever faced as the amount of stuff the big blonde haired youngster possesses is amazing.

Not Impressive.

HIS RECORD to date is not impressive. He has won six games and lost nine, but he has no one to blame but himself in the majority of his defeats. Lack of control has been his one drawback to the most successful season an Atlanta pitcher ever had. With a pitcher dishing out bases on balls as frequently as Paul has, a team loses confidence. At that they got Musser a lead three times Saturday, only to have him kick it away. Come on, Paul, pull yourself together and show them it is just a slump.

Needs Confidence.

MUSSER, old boy, you need a little more confidence in your own ability. Make yourself believe that you have something on every batter that steps up to that plate and then cut loose with everything you've got. Don't think for a second that any one batter has your goat. Try this system for a while and see what the result will be. Remember, that there are eight other men on the team. Stick it over them and let the rest of the men earn their salaries. Don't try to be a hero there for. In a pinch put it over if he knocks it out of the lot. They cannot all go safe and it's better than walking them any day in the week.

What's Gone Wrong?

KING BRADY has been batted out of the box the last two starts. What's gone wrong with the "King of Deep Reliable?" Here's hoping that it's just a national lacing that all pitchers get occasionally. Better luck the next time out, King, old scout.

A Record.

ATLANTA batters have a record of which they can feel proud. In the games played there on Saturday and Sunday, the Chattanooga chieftain, Ens fanned but three times, a wonderful record. Paul Musser, the Cleveland and Elliott lent a world's series pitchers, fanning the kid once each, twice in the series just closed.

Have Not Cracked.

THE EXPECTED break of the Philadelphia Nationals has not materialized. In fact it seems to look as if Quakertown will have a world's series of its own this fall. The Philadelphia Nationals' twilers are leading the league, their batters are leading, their fielders are leading and they are the best sluggers. As our esteemed contemporary, G. Rice, remarks outside of leading in batting, fielding and pitching, they haven't any club at all.

Lucky For League.

INSTEAD of condemning Connie Mack and his Athletics for making a runaway race of it in the American league, the other clubs had better be thankful that he let for Jackson get away. If the Shoeless wonder was in Mack's outfield, the Athletics would win so many games that the total number won by the Tribe when they set a world's record for the most games won in a season would look sickly in comparison. The other seven clubs have something to be thankful for after all.

Some Good Sport.

TENNIS fans of Atlanta will witness some good matches this week, when the Georgia state title is contested for at the Piedmont Driving Club beginning today. All the best players in the state are entered.

Texas Tennis.

The tennis championship of the state of Texas will begin on the courts of the Houston Country club, at Houston, Texas, today, and continue through the week.

Price Faces the Alibis; Barons Here on Thursday Which Is Trophy Day

By Dick Jemison.

Gilbert Price, the Crackers' lone left-hander and leading hurler, will face the Nashville Alibis, otherwise known as the Nashville Volunteers, at Ponce de Leon park this afternoon in the first game of a home stay or a week.

The Alibis, dubbed thusly as the result of their president's aptitude in trying to squirm out of his own mistakes and lay the blame on some one else, have it on the Crackers thus far in the number of games won.

On their last visit to Ponce de Leon they made a clean sweep of a three-game series. On the two visits to Sulphur Dell the Crackers broke even in the six games played.

Game in Protest.

The seventh game resulted in a squabble that has not been settled as yet. It will probably be thrown out by President Kavanaugh and ordered played over. At present the local papers are keeping this game in the won column of the Crackers and the lost column of the Alibis.

The series means more than just a renewal of the rivalry between the clubs that broke out when the Cracker chiefs put one over on Nashville by getting the league's leading hitter and then selling them Dave Callahan, netting a great hitter and some cash as the result of the Nashville president's slip-up.

He tried to pour oil on the troubled waters by announcing to the Nashville press that Callahan was sent to the Vols with a large cash bonus, to get the Vols to release all claims to Wallopling Harry. The Callahan deal was separate and distinct, as the local press proved.

Second Place Fight.

The series means a temporary settlement of the second place position in the league standing. The two teams are fighting neck and neck in the runner-up position, and the three games will have direct bearing on the final outcome of the race at the end of the season.

With the Cracker twirlers in any kind of form, the Vols are going to find themselves up against a tougher proposition than they have been this far this season. The locals promise to start their chase after the Gulls in the present home stay, and the Vols will be the first to feel the prongs.

Carleton Molesworth and his Birmingham Barons will be the next opponents, closing the home stay with games Thursday, Friday and Saturday, after which the locals hike to four cities before returning home again for a double-header July 4.

This season the Barons have been rather easy meat for the local team, eight victories in eleven games having been scored. Big Clinton Propst has woth both games he has pitched against the Crackers, while Bill Foxen has copped the other.

Attendance Day.

Thursday will be the big day at Ponce de Leon. Judge William M. Kavanaugh, president of the Southern league, will be in Atlanta for this game, which will be known as "attendance trophy presentation day."

The handsome silver trophy won by the Crackers for the largest paid attendance the opening game of the season will be presented to the Crackers by the league's chief executive with elaborate ceremonies.

But Atlanta fans must not go to sleep on their honors. Three thousand two hundred and seven paid admissions is a pretty good attendance for a week day, without any great amount of boosting, and the Crackers must show better than this or have fun poked at them by the Barons.

Can we do it? We most assuredly can, if we get together and pull. There must be no lethargic volley adopted. Action is demanded to land this second prize and show the Barons that their claims to the best baseball city in the south may be well founded, if they do not consider Atlanta when thus talking.

Here is the probable line-up of the opening game between the Alibis and the Crackers this afternoon:

His Debut Was a Success; Faces the Alibis Next

The big right hander that Fred Clarke, manager of the Pittsburg Pirates, sent to the Crackers for further seasoning. His debut party against the Chattanooga Lookouts last Thursday was a huge success. His next time out will be against the Nashville Alibis in the series which opens today. They will find him a mighty hard pitcher to handle. Conzelman looks like a "find" and Fred Clarke showed his wisdom in keeping a stout string attached. Cool, calculating, with splendid control and an overhand curve drop that is a bearcat, Conzelman is going to horn in on that pitching medal contest before very long.

That Pittsburg will recall him seems certain.

YALE MEETS HARVARD ON WATER THIS WEEK

Sixty-First Annual Race on the Thames This Friday—The Crews Evenly Matched.

New York, June 14.—(Special.)—When the Yale and Harvard varsity eights paddle to the starting line at New London next Friday the flash of the starter's pistol will mark the sixty-first anniversary of the initial boat race between these collegiate rivals.

Next to the annual Oxford-Cambridge regatta, it is the oldest and most famous event of university aquatic sports. Viewing the picturesque scene on the Thames rives at New London, it is hard to conjecture in comparison with the first race rowed way back in 1852.

Although there had been more or less rowing by student boat clubs at both Harvard and Yale, beginning about 1844, it was not until eight years later that a direct challenge was sent from the New Haven oarsmen to those at Cambridge. The defy was accepted by the Oneida club, for Harvard, and the date set for August 3, the race to be rowed on Lake Winnepisseogee, Center Harbor, N. H.

According to one version, Yale sent two eight-oared shells named Undine and Shawmut to compete against Harvard's Oneida. Another account of that day says the Yale entry as Halcyon. These are but details, however, for the race resulted in a Harvard victory, the Oneida finishing first in a two-minute pull by about two lengths, and the judges stated that the time "was about ten minutes." From this small beginning came the annual regatta, which in Yale-Harvard sports divides popularity only with the yearly football game.

MERKLE AND UMPIRE ENGAGE IN A FIGHT

Zanesville, Ohio, June 15.—In an exciting exhibition game here this afternoon between the New York Nationals and the local Interstate league team, the Giants won by the score of 5 to 4 although Umpire Frank Newhouse, of the Interstate league, declared the game forfeited to Zanesville 9 to 0 following his fight with Merkle.

Merkle in the eighth objected to Newhouse's decision on a close play at first and finally made a rush at the umpire. Newhouse hit the New York first baseman over the head with his mask and brought blood from the cash. Then ordered him from the game. Merkle refused to go and the umpire then forfeited the game to Zanesville, 9 to 0. Manager Moran, of the locals, however, ordered the game continued and he himself acted as umpire.

FRENCH DERBY WON BY BLANC'S DAGOR

Paris, June 15.—The Prix Du Jockey club—the French derby—was run at the Chantilly course today and won by Edmond Blanc's dagor, a bay colt by Flying Fox, an outsider in the main finish, and ridden by Mr. Bellhouse. M. L. Ofry-Roodorer's Bald-Saint Alary's Bruleur third.

A fair day and prospects of an especially interesting race brought *together one of the most brilliant as*semblages of years, which included many prominent Americans. There were ten starters, an unusually fine set of colts, with no special choices among them. The favorite's chances Simeon and Reuben were favorites, but both were unplaced. Dagor winning easily by two lengths.

Soon after the start W. K. Vanderbilt's Plerpirlol and Madame N. G. Cheremeteff's Albanis fell. H. B. Duryea's Turner, Jean Belmont's Vulcain V. and J. E. Widener's Roi De Lydo also ran. The Prix Du Jockey Club is a stake for three-year-olds at one and one-half miles. It was worth this year $97,000.

Thorpe's Trophy for Swede.

Stockholm, Sweden, June 15.—At the conclusion of an athletic meet in the stadium today the king bestowed the trophy won by James Thorpe, the Carlisle Indian, in the decathalon at the Olimpic games on Weisleder, Swedan, who finished second. C. Lomberg and H. Holmberg, both of Sweden, were awarded second and third prizes respectively.

KAISER IS CELEBRATING ASCENSION TO THRONE

Berlin, June 15.—The twenty-fifth anniversary of the succession of Emperor William II was quietly observed today, as the 15th of June had also also of the death of the emperor's father, Frederick III. The emperor and empress attended a memorial service in the morning in the garrison church at Potsdam, and later the emperor laid a wreath on his father's tomb. He then received in the new palace the former members of the First infantry, guard, of which he was captain in 1888.

All the members of the imperial family took luncheon at the new palace with the exception of the crown prince. Their majesties and guests proceeded to the royal palace at Berlin in the evening.

The real festivities will begin tomorrow morning with reveille in the Schloss yard.

Great crowds have gathered in Berlin and the congestion in the streets is beyond description. The police in charge of traffic find it difficult to keep the crowds of people and vehicles moving. Under Don Linden, which has been brilliantly decorated, was so crowded that the guards at the Brendenburg gate said from the Schloss were closed to ingress.

On two special trains the Muller party, accompanied by Dudley Field Malone, third assistant secretary of state, and others, left at midnight for South Bethlehem, where tomorrow will be spent inspecting the great steel plant there. They will reach New York tomorrow night to spend Tuesday. Wednesday they go to West Point on a torpedo boat destroyer, Thursday to Boston and Friday to Niagara Falls.

The party will reach San Francisco June 27, and will be back in New York July 5, after which they will take the battleship Minas Geraes for Brazil.

Sunday School Growing.

Sunday was a great day with the Central Baptist congregation. The Sunday school, always large, was greater than in the past few weeks, the building being taxed to capacity.

The pastor, Rev. Caleb A. Ridley, preached at both morning and evening services. The morning theme was, "The Kingdom of God," and in the evening the fourth of a series of Sunday evening sermons on popular themes was given, "Jonah, a Chronic Grumbler."

Story of a Big Maine Willow.

(From The Lewiston Journal.)

One of the biggest willows in Maine may be seen on the Emery Estes farm in Durham. This farm is on the river road leading from the bridge at Lisbon Falls toward Southwest Bend. The base of the enormous growth here is between 12 and 15 feet. The top is luxuriant and affords fine shade for the front yard. Durham people relate the curious story that this great willow grew from a slender willow switch used by one of the pioneer settlers in town when he first came here, over a bridle path through the forest, by horseback. His companion, who acted on an adjoining farm, also stuck a switch into the ground, by way of a memorial of their journey. His companion's switch did not survive this transplanting. But the big tree in what is now Mr. Estes' yard bears testimony to nearly two centuries growth.

GOVERNMENT PLANS NEW ATTACK ON COAL TRUST

It has become known that the government had prepared plans to proceed against the coal combination existing between the Reading railroad and the Central railroad of New Jersey. This action will revive a disturbing feature of the government suit against the so-called anthracite trust, which was disposed of by the United States supreme court last session. It will be the culmination of the steps in a series of efforts on the part of the federal government to smash the so-called trust. In the anthracite decision of last December the supreme court held that the government failed to establish the general combination charged against the coal-carrying *roads for apportioning the total ton*nage to the seaboard by agreement between them. On the questions of the greatest concern to the business world the supreme court failed to pass. These were charges involving alleged violations of the Sherman law through the control by the Reading of the Central of New Jersey and by the Erie of New York, Susquehanna and Western. The application of the commodities clause to the present situation and the question of the stock relationship between the railroads were dismissed by the court without decision. The court held that the government's case, so far as it related to the commodities clause and these railroad combinations, involved other causes of action. Attorney General McReynolds handled the anthracite cases as special counsel under the Taft administration and probably will give the new litigation his personal attention. George F. Baer, head of the Reading system, is planning his defense.

"DOLLAR DIPLOMACY" DISCUSSED BY BRYAN

Secretary Tells Brazilian Minister Why It Was Abandoned by the United States.

Washington, D. C., June 15.—Secretary Bryan today discussed with Dr. Lauro Muller, Brazilian minister of foreign affairs, on special mission here, the reason for the abandonment by the Wilson administration of the so-called "dollar diplomacy" policy. Dr. Muller had called at the home of Mr. Bryan to pay his farewell respects.

There is no lack of desire to encourage increase of commercial relations between the United States and Brazil and other nations, Mr. Bryan told the visitor.

This is to be done, however, he said, without having the government back enterprises of American capital in foreign countries. The administration, he added, desires to see American business ventured abroad through the established of friendly relations with those countries and their people and by the use of absolutely honorable commercial methods. Dr. Muller agreed that this was the wisest policy, and he asserted that he would do what he could to encourage Brazil's investments here.

Mr. Bryan suggested that the state department of the two governments could do much to prevent improper business from gaining a foothold by reporting promptly any cases they discovered. Dr. Muller promised to do this.

Tonight shortly before the Brazilian minister and his party left their hotel for the train, Secretary Bryan called to say farewell.

President Wilson's friendly reception last Wednesday, Secretary Bryan's cordiality, and the recess by the senate in his honor Friday afternoon, were the three features which Dr. Muller said pleased him most in his five days here. Today the Brazilian embassy staff gave him a luncheon at the Chevy Chase club.

On two special trains the Muller party, accompanied by Dudley Field Malone, third assistant secretary of state, and others, left at midnight for South Bethlehem, where tomorrow will be spent inspecting the great steel plant there. They will reach New York tomorrow night to spend Tuesday. Wednesday they go to West Point on a torpedo boat destroyer, Thursday to Boston and Friday to Niagara Falls.

The party will reach San Francisco June 27, and will be back in New York July 5, after which they will take the battleship Minas Geraes for Brazil.

CONGRESS OF WOMEN OPENS AT BUDAPEST

Suffragettes Welcomed to Hun Capital by Minister of Education.

Budapest, June 15.—The Woman's Suffrage congress was formally opened in the academy of music this afternoon. Count Apponyi, minister of education, in behalf of the government, the burgomaster of Budapest and Countess Iska Teleki, president of the Hungarian organizing committee, delivered addresses of welcome.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, of New York, in the presidential address devoted her attention to the phenomenal growth of women's movements, saying that there are only a few countries now in which the movement is dormant. When China is enrolled tomorrow the standard of the alliance will have been raised in six continents and more than twenty-five nations.

During the past winter woman's suffrage bills had been considered in seventeen parliaments and forty-two thirty-three states and other legislatures. The greatest gains had been in America, and she was confident of ultimate success in Europe on the whole North American continent.

Mrs. Catt denounced the "white slaves" bondage of brown and yellow women in Asia, saying that Europe was cast as one of the saddest and most tragic of all western influences where by thousands each girls are sacrificed every year. The women of the Orient, however, she added, are awakening to new and hopeful standards of thought, tending to the elevation of woman, and she appealed to their western sisters to come to their aid.

The Rev. Anna Howard Shaw preached in the Protestant church in the morning before a large congregation. She spoke from the font, some of the church prosbyters objecting to her occupying the pulpit.

AT THE THEATERS.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Forsyth.)

Bid Fisher is here. The creator of "Mutt and Jeff" will be in the city all the week, appearing matinee and night at the Forsyth, headlining a clever Keith vaudeville bill.

Pauline Welch (Mrs. Fisher) will appear in a singing and dancing specialty. She introduced "Everybody's Doing It" in Atlanta on her last appearance here. A special feature will be "The Lawn Party," a combination of ten talented youngsters, who will appear in the characters of famous stage people in their star parts. Adonis and his dog in "The Act Beautiful of Vaudeville," Katz Eminton and his pet animals, the three Leightons, Whitfield and Ireland, and others, make up the bill.

(At the Grand.)

There is a wonderful interest in the *engagement of the "Quo Vadis" pic*tures at the Grand this week. The event will start with matinee this afternoon, and continue all the week, with daily afternoon and evening performances, lasting two and a quarter hours. Reserved seats are obtainable. While "Quo Vadis" is a motion picture entertainment, it is not to be classed with the ordinary exhibition of movies. Eighteen months of hard work, thousands of dollars, a company of more than a thousand people and a support of thousands of people to make the scenes perfect, wild animals, soldiers of Italy, and travel covering many miles, all contribute to this masterpiece in modern photo-plays.

Loving Tributes Are Paid Memory of S. H. Phelan, Sr.

The last tributes of love were paid yesterday by hundreds of Atlantans to the memory of S. H. Phelan, Sr., formerly one of Atlanta's best-known citizens, who died on Friday as his plantation in Crawford county.

The body was brought to Atlanta on Saturday and was taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Dallis, 58 West Fourteenth street, where a large number of friends called that night and filled the home all Sunday morning.

St. Luke's was crowded when the funeral services began at 3:30 o'clock, with the Rev. C. B. Wilmer, rector of the church, officiating. The many and beautiful floral offerings showed the love and the esteem in which Mr. Phelan was held by all. In the great congregation were many of the most prominent men in the city, who in former years had been his business associates and personal friends.

Organizations Represented.

There were representatives present from the many organizations with which Mr. Phelan had been connected during his long residence in Atlanta. Couer de Lion commandery of the Knights Templars acted as the honorary escort. There was also in attendance many members of the Burns club, with which Mr. Phelan had been connected for years.

Mr. Phelan had always been an enthusiastic and popular member of the Atlanta camp, No. 15, United Confederate veterans. An escort from this camp paid last honor to an old comrade.

Mr. Phelan was also a member of the Knights of Pythias and of the Shriners, and members of both orders were in attendance.

The pallbearers were as follows: Henry H. Cabaniss, John E. Murphy, Dr. Joseph Jacobs, George W. Parrott, Frank Ellis, Donald Bain, Frank Callaway and Clark Howell.

A beautiful service was held at the grave in West View, during which Mrs. Frank Pearson sang "Some Day." When the religious rites were ended the Knights Templars took charge to pay the last tribute to a member of their organization.

During his long residence in Atlanta, Mr. Phelan was one of the best known and most prominent citizens. He was active in both her business and social life. In his office the Capital City club was organized and he was one of the charter members. He served as one of the directors of the Cotton States exposition.

Delegate to Baltimore.

He took an active interest in politics, and at the last democratic convention in Baltimore served as a delegate from the sixth congressional district of Georgia.

Much of his time, however, was devoted to his property in Crawford county which he had developed into one of the most successful plantations in the state.

Mr. Phelan's chief interest, however, was in his family. He was noted for his absolute love of his children and for his generosity to his friends.

He is survived by the following children: Mrs. C. S. Atkinson, Mrs. E. E. Dallis, Mrs. A. W. Goldsmith, Jr., all of Atlanta; Mrs. Barry Wright, of Rome; Mrs. M. G. Phelan and S. H. Phelan, Jr., of Atlanta, and Leman Phelan, of Crawford county.

Mountain Lovers Marry in Auto And Drive Here on Wedding Trip

In the heart of the north Georgia mountain country Nellie Burlington, 16 years old, and pretty, decided to marry Gordon Cannon, a prosperous young farmer.

As her parents objected on account of her age, Saturday afternoon they determined to wed, anyhow, and to spend their honeymoon in an auto.

A friend, Virgil Stephens, owned a car with which he operated a stage line from Creighton, the girl's home, in Cherokee county, to the nearest railroad, New Hope. Stephens as "best man." A girl friend of the bored bride, Maud Pierson, agreed to accompany her on the trip as bridesmaid.

Early Saturday night the quartet, with Stephens at the wheel, set out for Canton, Ga., in which township was the nearest justice of the peace. The license was obtained at midnight from the ordinary of Cherokee county, and Newt White, the district "J. P." performed the ceremony in the automobile.

The remainder of the night was spent en route to Atlanta. They arrived in this city early Sunday morning. The day was occupied in visits to Grant park, Piedmont park and White City and sight-seeing trips over the city. At nightfall the bride and groom and their attendants left for their home to break the news to the girl's parents, who, so far as Mr. and Mrs. Cannon know, are unaware of the marriage.

The bride talked with a Constitution reporter Sunday morning. She was pretty and vivacious, watching the merry-go-round and having the time of her life. She was *nervous and ap*prehensive of the reception from her parents in Cherokee.

"Any way," she said, "whenever they begin talking of weddings at home, and of how exciting they were, they won't have a thing on me. We married in an automobile, took our honeymoon in it, and would keep on house in it if it was big enough and had a kitchen."

DAMAGED IN COLLISION, STEAMER IS MISSING

Calumet, Mich., June 15.—The ore steamer Jesse Spalding, damaged in a collision with the coal steamer Wilfred M. Snyder, Jr., is missing on Lake Superior tonight, somewhere, it is though, in the vicinity of Keweenaw Point. Distress signals from the Spalding ceased suddenly after the collision during a heavy fog this morning and the Snyder, Jr., which had backed clear, was unable to find the other injured vessel.

The Snyder, Jr., was only slightly damaged above the water line.

It is possible the Spalding was near the scene of the collision.

The Southern Y. W. C. A.

Plans are already being perfected for the third conference, in June, 1914.

CHRISTIAN MESSAGE TO THE MODERN MAN

Philadelphia, Pa., June 15.—Commencement week exercises at the University of Pennsylvania began today, the Rev. Alexander MacColl preaching the baccalaureate sermon on "The Christian Message to the Modern Man."

"It is a great thing to be coming to the maturity of one's powers in this age," said Dr. McColl. "For there are many evidences that we are passing into a new era in our American history.

"The emphasis of thought in the last fifty years," he said, "has been upon the development of material resources. Among earnest men the emphasis of thought in the next fifty years is to be upon the development and distribution of human wealth."

MACHINE GUN TALE STIRS MINE OWNERS

West Virginia Operators Line Up Witnesses to Refute the Charge of Armored Train Fired on Camp of Strikers.

Charleston, W. Va., June 15.—The case of the coal mine operators of the state of West Virginia will be presented, beginning tomorrow, before the senate mine strike investigating committee. Today the attorneys for the operators lined up the scores of witnesses they will produce to show that they are not to be blamed for the conditions which threw the Paint Creek and Cabin Creek mining districts into a state of civil war.

Much of the activity of the mine operators' lawyers will be directed toward breaking down the story of Lee Calvin, an ex-mine guard, the star witness for the miners, who on Saturday told the committee of his experiences on the train carrying machine guns which shot up the camp of the miners at Holly Grove, on Paint Creek. Just before the last declaration of martial law Calvin accused Quinn Morton, a mine operator, of urging that the train return and fire again on the tented camp, after the fire from the cars had once raked the little village and after Cisco Estep had been killed beside his home.

Quinn Morton himself, Sheriff Bonner Hill and others who were on the train will be called by the operators. Calvin will be recalled for cross-examination.

Conditions Causing Strike.

The discussion of general conditions leading up to the strike is the only branch of the inquiry which the committee has left to dispose of during its stay in Charleston. On this point the operators desire to present many witnesses. When the inquiry here is concluded the committee will return to Washington to conclude its hearings.

What the outcome of the inquiry will be is a matter which the big galaxy of stars engaged by both sides is discussing eagerly. The committee, under the resolution of the senate authorizing the investigation has solely the power to "inquire and report."

Whether the senate itself has jurisdiction over any of the matters involved in the controversy between the miners and the operators is a grave question. It is probable that as a matter of interstate commerce the senate may initiate remedial legislation as to any "combination against the mine operators of West Virginia," such is charged in the resolution. But beyond that even the members of the committee themselves doubt their authority to take any real action.

"The state of West Virginia is not on trial here," is the way Senator Swanson, the chairman of the committee, states the question, "this committee has no power to try any one for any offense. We are simply here to determine the facts and report them to the full committee on education and labor to be presented to the senate for its information."

Senator Martine in Pulpit.

Today the committee took a holiday. The witnesses were entertained by several of the leading citizens of Charleston at breakfast, dinner and luncheon. Senator Martine of New Jersey occupied the pulpit of the First Methodist church of Charleston, at the morning service. He was introduced as a member of "the American House of Lords," and when he took the platform he objected strenuously to the designation.

"I am a member of the senate of the United States," he said, "and I am proud to be but I shall not accept the designation in a republican form of government of any such cognomen as the 'House of Lords.'"

Senator Martine discussed the physical resources of the state, declaring them to be inexhaustible.

"But the rich mineral lands of your state," he declared, "have been stricken with the cankering blight of insatiable greed. The wealth of the state has been taken from the many by the few."

The senator's address caused considerable discussion, but he was warmly greeted by the members of the congregation, many of the most aristocratic in the state.

Both Sides Rest On Arms.

Both sides in the controversy rested on their arms today in preparation for the struggle that will come when the operators introduce their testimony this week. The representatives of the miners have gathered together a large amount of documentary evidence and conditions in the coal fields which will be presented to the committee and made a part of the record. In addition Senator Kenyon contemplates a thorough inquiry into the financial operations of the operators, the Paint and Cabin Creeks, who lease the land they mine, and the ownership of the mineral lands.

BALKAN ALLIES URGED TO STACK THEIR ARMS

Sofia, June 15.—The Bulgarian government has replied to the Servian invitation for demobilization, urging in effect that the allies sincerely adopt the Bulgarian arbitration proposal before demobilization, but also suggests that in order to prevent further attempts at pressure it is necessary that the contested districts should be occupied by mixed garrisons.

The British government has appealed to King Ferdinand in favor of demobilization.

Skyscraper Cities.

Opposite the postoffice on lower Broadway, New York city, there has just been completed a building, 750 feet high, which will provide working quarters for 10,000 people. If all the men and women employed in the "skyscraper city" should attempt to go uptown by the subway it would take the tender express trains running at their fastest speed, one behind the other, fifteen minutes to haul them away. Though this happens to be the highest structure in the city there are others nearly as high and the city engineer has accommodation for one or five thousand people each and one of hundreds that accommodations for from one to ten thousand people each. The number of these great buildings is steadily growing.—The World's Work for June.

Thief Laughed at Her.

(From The New York World.)

Amid the cares and worries in the rear of her husband's fruit store in Main street, Flushing, Long Island, Mrs. Samuel Hoffman had to stand yesterday and watch a thief rob the cash register in front. To be sure, she did finally catch the thief, but she was so barently was aware of conditions back of the screen for as he departed he laughed and said, "I dare say to chase me."

Mrs. Gordon did not chase. Back of the screen she was taking a bath when the thief entered the store. It was in the slack afternoon hour, and she expected no customers.

"I thought," she said afterward, "of wrapping myself in two Turkish towels, but I could find any pins. And then he was whistling the money drawer." And then I was. It was only $8 he got, but dear me, it would have been the same if it were $500.? Indeed, I wouldn't have run out to catch him if it had been $8,000,000!"

The Difference.

(From The Chicago Daily News.)

Mrs. Gyle Blank advertised for a maid and got many answers. From the cloud of applicants she chose one. Before long there was trouble in the family. The maid had been employed elsewhere and she knew the difference. Mrs. Blank became acrimonious. "Do you call yourself a lady's maid?" "I used to ma'am," replied the servant, "before I worked for you."

600 SOLDIERS LEFT DEAD AND WOUNDED

Rudolfo Reyes, minister of justice, is slated for retirement. He is the son of General Bernardo Reyes, a Diaz man who was killed in the battle at the palace at the time of the uprising against Madero. General Felix Diaz insists that the cabinet changes do not presage trouble for the administration as is believed in some quarters.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE IS HIGH IN THE CITY OF MEXICO

Mexico City, June 15.—Foreign exchange, for which a month ago bankers demanded as high as 2.85 pesos for gold, but which dropped to nearly normal—two pesos for one dollar gold—with the announcement of the placing of the 200,000,000 peso loan by the government, rose again yesterday to approximately 2.50, several banks declining to sell at any price.

The flurry started with the refusal of the Banco Nacional de Mexico, through which it is understood the French loan funds are to be paid to sell exchange, giving as a reason that its balance will be exhausted abroad. This reason is said to be the fact that the loan funds are being delivered in installments instead of in a lump sum, as apparently was expected. The first 30,000,000 pesos paid in have been exhausted by pressing government obligations, and the second installment to the same amount is not yet available.

ADVANCE OF GENERAL OJEDA CHECKED BY THE REBELS

Nozales, Ariz., June 15.—The advance of General Ojeda's federals north of Guaymas was checked in fighting yesterday, said today's advices from official insurgent forces. It was said that General Obregon's state troops made a flank movement, encountering the federals below Ortiz and capturing 150 men. There was a fight in the morning today.

REBELS TRYING TO STARVE MONTEREY INTO SUBMISSION

Brownsville, Texas, June 15.—That "constitutionalists" are endeavoring to starve the city of Monterey, Mexico, and force the federal garrison there to withdraw, the declaration of two Mexicans who arrived here today after traveling the greater part of the journey from Monterey aboard a hand car.

All avenues of supplies have been cut off, according to the men, and even carts, carrying corn, are not permitted to reach the city. Industries within Monterey have suspended operations, they say, and many of the poorer classes are already suffering from hunger.

It is reported that 400 rebel troops will be started overland from Matamoras tomorrow to reinforce the constitutionalist forces in control of Nuevo Laredo.

A Prisoner's Hobby.

(From The Indianapolis News.)

A great deal has been perpetrated on a prisoner by the British government. He was removed from one prison to another, and at his second abode was not allowed to keep his pet mice. When he parted with them strong men turned away their heads, so affecting was the scene. And the prison commissioner who witnessed it promised him that he would see that the mice were taken care of, and he is said to have been as good as his word.

The Devil's Graveyard.

(From The Indianapolis News.)

A cemetery known as the "Devil's Graveyard" on top of a rocky hill overlooking Sion, Switzerland, where for centuries were buried sorcerers and sorceresses, is being blasted away to make room for public improvements. From the tenth century to the early seventeenth those supposed to be in traffic with the evil one were tortured, executed and buried there. The excavators have found bones estimated to be those of many hundreds of persons.

Now that the Chicago physicians have decided in favor of the tight skirt there is, of course, to be no future change in the fashion. Let the car steps be lowered accordingly and other changes be made.

STRIKE TO BE RENEWED IN THE COAL REGIONS

West Virginia Miners Assert Operators Haven't Kept Agreement.

Charleston, W. Va., June 16.—Word came to Charleston early this morning from various sources that the miners at work in the operations on Paint and Cabin creeks had voted at mass meetings yesterday to renew the strike which for a year has convulsed the coal field. According to reports reaching Governor Hatfield, meetings at Eskdale and in the mountains above Keyford were held not to return to work this morning.

The miners were at work under an agreement framed by Governor Hatfield and agreed to by miners and operators. Mutterings of discontent have been heard among the miners for several days.

Representatives of the miners appearing before the senate committee investigating the strike received confirmation of the report that the strike would be renewed this morning.

"Information that has just come to me from Paint and Cabin Creeks," said S. R. Montgomery, of counsel for the miners, "makes it practically certain that the strike will be renewed this morning. The suspension will be general on Cabin creek, but I can't say how far Paint creek will be affected. Feeling ran high at the meetings yesterday, I understand. Four miners were beaten up by guards on Cabin creek yesterday, and the men are very indignant.

"The operators have failed to live up to the agreement of Governor Hatfield's, which provided that the strikers were to be taken back to work without discrimination."

Governor Hatfield was at the executive office early this morning, awaiting further word from the field, and the suppressed excitement in Charleston increased.

The Lost Leader Writer.

(From The London Daily Sketch.)

The story is told that when the new proprietor of The Times first went over the building in Printing House Square he saw a door covered with cobwebs which wouldn't open. After they had waited a long time an aged caretaker was found hobbling with enormous keys, one of which fitted the rusty lock and after great straining turned it. Inside were dust and ashes and cobwebs and—a skeleton. It was leaning over a table with a pen in its bone fingers.

"What on earth is this?" they asked.

"Oh, I remember hearing that in my great-great-grandfather's days they used to call it 'the leader writers,'" said the old key bearer. "He must have got locked in!"

Wheeling Chickens to a Fair.

(From The World's Work for June.)

The Oregon State fair, in 1912, spent $3,500 in prizes for school industrial work. The railroads and electric lines gave free transportation to all displays that were made by the children. One little girl, who lived off the railroad, wheeled her prize-winning chickens 2 miles in a baby buggy to the fair. Another little girl, 7 years old, put $30 in the bank after the fair was over—her net profits from a $15 prize on a trained colt, a $5 prize for the biggest watermelon, and other cash prizes for vegetable displays. he best cake was baked b ya 12-year-old boy.

MAYOR WILL APPROVE FINANCE SHEET TODAY

Segregation Ordinance Will, in All Probability, Be Passed by Council.

The June finance sheet will be approved by Mayor James G. Woodward today, and just as soon as the new agreement between council and the Destructor company is signed up the $260,000 crematory plant will pass into the possession of the city.

Mayor Woodward will send the sheet back in time for council to adopt it at the afternoon session. He will also send council a message declaring that the approval of the sheet is conditional in that none of the items conflict with the decision of the supreme court on the crematory injunction.

"I want to be on the safe side," the mayor said, last night. "The interests of the city must be looked after."

The conditional approval of the sheet by Mayor Woodward throws the burden on council, and a majority of the members of that body are willing to pass it and write finis to the crematory wrangle.

Aside from the adoption of the finance sheet, council has a number of important matters up for discussion. Chiefly, the Ashley segregation ordinance is calculated to enliven the session. The ordinance was threshed out once before the ordinance committee, and recently the police committee invited a hearing and adopted the measure. It will go to council with a favorable committee report, which almost assures its passage in council. The ordinance is not drastic, nevertheless it has stirred interest. Arguments against the law before the committee indicated that it would be taken to the courts and tested as to its constitutionality.

Alderman Harwell is reported to be ready to introduce in council a resolution urging the appointment of a committee of citizens and council members to investigate needed improvements and report back to council the advisability of imposing an additional twenty-five cents tax. Alderman Harwell has not discussed his plan, but it is understood that he is in favor of abolishing the sanitary tax of $3 and letting the tax increase make up for the deficiency, which has been estimated to be in the neighborhood of $130,000.

No Car Line On Ivy.

Council will have an opportunity, possibly today, to pass on another big improvement on Ivy street. Councilman George H. Boynton is working out a plan whereby the Georgia Railway and Power company may be induced to abandon the street and operate its cars on Courtland street and Piedmont avenue. President Preston S. Arkwright favors the project, and with the assistance of the property owners and citizens living in the northeast section, he hopes to make a favorable report.

A spirited contest is looked for in the selection of a park board member from the second ward to succeed Frank Willby, resigned. Oscar Weinmeister, well-known real estate promoter, and A. N. Thom, a capitalist, have been mentioned, and the second ward delegation in council has not decided on a choice. Both are well qualified to serve because they are enthusiastic park advocates.

Several appointments in the sanitary department will be passed on.

The police committee report will include a batch of recommendations on near-beer saloons, the largest number in some time. A majority of the licenses are renewals.

Day of Rest for Oarsmen.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 15.—This was a day of rest for the 141 oarsmen who are assembled in practice for the intercollegiate rowing regatta to take place here on Saturday. Many of the oarsmen are suffering from sore hands. Cornell, Washington, Columbia, Wisconsin, Syracuse and Pennsylvania will be represented in the races.

Funeral of T. J. Sheron.

Augusta, Ga., June 15.—(Special.)—The funeral of Terence J. Sheron, half owner of the Augusta Herald, occurred this afternoon at 4 o'clock, at the Church of the Sacred Heart. Mr. Sheron, after an illness since December 5, died yesterday afternoon. Prior to going into the newspaper business he was in the shoe business in Augusta and Macon.

213th Yale Commencement.

New Haven, Conn., June 15.—The commencement exercises of the 213th year of Yale university were formally begun this morning with the baccalaureate address of President Arthur T. Hadley. His address was an earnest plea for more courage—a thought in this "an age of reform movements." He urged the members of the graduating class "not to let our knowledge crowd out our faith."

Strike Vote Ordered.

Baltimore, June 15.—Arrangements for a vote of trainmen in the employ of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad upon the question of calling a strike to enforce their demands for increased pay and shorter hours and better conditions will be made at a joint meeting here tomorrow of the grievance committee of the Brotherhood of Train Men and the Order of Railway Conductors. Whether there shall be a strike or the case submitted to arbitration will be voted upon.

Gomez Sails for France.

Havana, June 15.—Ex-President Gomez and his family sailed for France today aboard the steamer Ecpagne. General Gomez intends to remain in Europe for several months.

Breaks World's Record.

Vienna, June 15.—The French aviator, Edmond Perreyon, who held the world's altitude record for an aeroplane, both for pilot and pilot and passenger, broke all the world's record carrying two passengers today. He reached a height of 15,480 feet. The record with one passenger is 16,-263 feet.

Arrested as Assassin.

Constantinople, June 15.—A son of Kiamil Pasha, ex-grand vizier, was arrested today, charged with being implicated in the assassination of Mahmoud Schefket Pasha.

YOUNG MEN ADVISED TO GO TO THE ORIENT

Providence, R. I., June 15.—The needs of the Orient that can be supplied by this country were outlined today by President W. H. P. Faunce, in a baccalaureate address to the graduating class of Brown university. President Faunce recently returned from a trip around the world, and said that the college graduate "who goes west today may well consider whether he should not keep on going until he comes to the farther east."

"Engineers," he said, "are needed to build the railways of the east, bankers to devise monetary systems, doctors to deal with the plague of blindness in Egypt, the horrors of leprosy in China and pollutions of soul and body consecrated by religion in India.

"But the greatest need of the eastern world is still to be named—the spirit of disinterested service to humanity. No material improvements will meet the Oriental needs. Nothing but the vision of God in Christ as vision which came to us from the Orient, can uplift and reshape the Oriental lands today."

Another Peace Argument.

Robert G. Fowler has passed along the route of the Panama canal in his aeroplane and might have dropped dynamite where he liked. What is the use of spending millions for forts and guns?

The Weather and Cotton.

"The weather" is a never-failing topic for conversation, speculation and, I might say, for exaggeration, and I presume has been so since Adam and Eve were expelled from the Garden of Eden. For the last four or five days it has caused more talk and more apprehension than for any similar period in June since away back in the past. Let's sum it up in a few datic inches and degrees: At Griffin, according to my thermometer and rain-gauge, the salient points of the record are here shown: June 1 and 2, rainfall, 1.44 inches; 6 and 7, rain, 1.84 inches; rain, 8 and 9, 1.37 inches, making a total of rainfall for the first ten days of the month of 4.54 inches. This is not of itself an extraordinary rainfall, and yet it is something more than the normal or average precipitation for the whole month; not every section of the south or even of the state has had more and some have had much less. But let us note the temperatures. On the 10th the minimum was 51 degrees, on the 11th, 51; on the 12th, the weather bureau compares the first drop to 54 degrees on the 10th with that of previous corresponding dates in the past. Why it should commence the 10th of June, 1913, with previous tenths of June back in the past does not appear, for the weather has no fixed definite relation to particular days of the month, nor to particular days of the week, a larger section of the month. It would seem reasonable—say the first ten days of June, or first third—giving the lowest daily minimum and the average of the daily minimums for the ten days. However, there is no one to dispute the statement that it has been at least many, many years since we have had three successive daily minimum temperatures during the first and third of June as low as 51 degrees.

What about the effect on crops of this low temperature? Some report even frost—visible frost—on the 11th. No issue is made on this statement of an observed fact, but if true it is quite remarkable that frost should occur with no lower observed temperature at or about sunrise than 50 or 51. It is a fact, however, that may be verified by actual inspection, even today (13th) and for some days to come, that many stalks of cotton and okra (same family) have been scorched as if by frost or fire and some cotton has been killed outright. I am writing from actual personal experience and observation, having closely inspected the half acre of my pet cotton growing—or waiting for a chance to grow—in my garden annex.

Has Cotton Been Damaged?

If cotton generally had been planted at the usual time, had come up promptly and been normal as to size and development and planting now would be no ground for apprehension. A backset, not amounting to actual death of the plants, received in April or May would not cause serious apprehension, as the crop ordinarily has plenty of time to recover from such a casualty. But the late-planted cotton has had little time, indeed none at all, to spare under the condition at present existing. Of course, no exact conclusion is possible as to the effect of the late cold snap. The injuring 'is manifest to the most casual observer, and will have its effect on the yield of the crop at the close of the season. I think it safe to say that the young crop has been injured by loss of time to the extent of not less than one week—possibly longer—and it may affect the final yield by half million bales to the bad.

Other Crops.

Actual injury has been confined, according to my limited field of observation, to okra and cotton. Even tender plants as tomatoes, snap beans, and pepper seem not to have been seriously affected, showing no signs of scorching or freezing. I should have remarked in the preceding paragraph that the injury to cotton was partly due to the wind and rain, slapping the stalks about, blowing them down, etc.

Corn was somewhat injured by the winds and rain, many stalks blown or broken down, but the damage—not including ex ceptional cases—probably amounts to but little.

On the whole, there is not much ground for serious discouragement to the farmer. A few days of warm sunshine, the removal of the open gashes in the earth made by the heavy rain showers which will be one of the effects of plowing over the crops will put us all into a cheerful humor, and we may even forget the untoward conditions of the past week, as the crops shall resume their wonted green and growing condition. RABBIT-FOOT CLOVER.

W. N. Auld, Elberton, Ga.—Please advise me what this is. Cattle like it. It is taking this section. Seems to be harmless.

Answer—The plant sent is a specimen of Trifolium arvense, a species of clover, the common name of which is rabbit-foot clover. This is an introduced plant but has been in this country so long as to become naturalized and is found in most sections north of the piney woods region. It is considered a valuable forage although cattle eat it readily as they do many other weeds. There is another species with clover called Buffalo clover (Trifolium reflexum), a native of the south which closely resembling the ordinary red clover (Trifolium protense) that is much more valuable and nutritious as a forage plant. Specimens of which have often been sent for identification.

HORSE SLOBBERS.

W. E. Moore, Andalusia, Ala.—My horse, 12 years old, bought first of March, has had bad treatment and was in a bad condition. Now I want to know what makes him slobber. He slobbers all the time, when eating and when at work. His flesh seems to fall and tumble all the time. I have given him Blood-Purifier and Kidney Cure, but don't work freely. He eats hearty. I feed him on corn and fodder and green food.

Answer—I suggest that the slobbering I suggest that you carefully examine his mouth especially the teeth and see if there is any sores, or irregular teeth, that cause the horse pain, such as sharp projecting edges. If any defect is discovered which you cannot remedy you will have to send for an expert. Give him a dose of 1 quart of linseed oil and when purging is over have ready and well powdered and mixed 6 ozs. each of saltpeter and copperas, divide into 24 doses, and give one each and morning in a bran mash. Change gradually from hay to 1 part corn to 2 parts shelled oats. Be sure he is not worming, see that he is well groomed and watered before and not after eating.

STAGGERS (?) OF COW.

Jas. O'Connell, Gabbettsville, Ga.—I have a fine cow with young calf. She has drunken from the creek and like that. She will be walking around all right then suddenly she gets weak in short time. Eats anything you give her, but when I give stock powder, salts and all the dry feed she will not eat meal.

Answer—I have little doubt that the peculiar symptoms are due to some disturbance in the brain and it may develop into a form of staggers which usually terminates fatally unless promptly and properly treated. If she is a valuable cow I would suggest that you have a competent veterinary surgeon see her and treat her. The case has not or had not at date of your writing developed sufficiently to enable a confident diagnosis. As it goes on the cow may die suddenly (then called mad staggers). The usual remedy is bleeding when taken at the start. If in full flesh and strength, 5 to 8 quarts of blood may be taken from the jugular vein. This should be followed immediately with a strong purge, say 1-2 lbs. Epsom salts, 1-2 oz. pulverized Nux Vomica, 1 pint cotton oil, 2 quarts warm water, all mixed and given as a drenching. Also give an injection of 2 quarts of warm, soapy water every 4 or 6 hours. Keep her in a quiet sheltered place, with plenty cold water to drink, but no food except small quantities of bran slops occasionally or grass.

SLIMY MILK.

"C. F. M.," Robertsdale, Ala. is referred for information desired to my article on "Slimy Milk," under title of "Bad Milk," in the Tri-Weekly of June 10. If he has seen his name—possibly queried by standing rule, I would have written him a postal. Also to the other references. Why will some inquirers suppress their names in spite of the standing printed request?

EYE OF COW AFFECTED.

T. J. H., Wray, Ga.—I have a Jersey cow and I noticed about four months ago, one of her eyes seemed to be inflamed. Since then there seems to be a growth growing over her eye something like "hoks" that we call in horses. Some cattle have "hooks" in their eyes?

Answer—Your description of the symptoms is not sufficiently full to enable me to say which one of several similar ailments some cows are subject to. There is really no such disease as "hooks" in horses and cattle. The trouble may be the result of an injury to the affected eye which has finally resulted in a form of white diffuse keratitis. Treat as follows. Put her in a darkened stable, give green food only and give a drench of 4 ozs. Glauber salts in one quart of water. Then for 10 days apply to the affected eyeball several times a day a drop or two of a solution of nitrate of silver and 1 grain sulphate morphia dissolved in 2 tablespoonfuls of rain water. This is an inflammation, instead of the last named treatment you may substitute after the first drenching, eyeball a few drops of the following solution: 15 grs. iodide of potassium, 40 grs. boracic acid and 1 drachm in tablespoonfuls distilled water. This will remove the unsightly. If feeding heavily and for a long time on cotton seed meal, gradually cease feeding it.

GREEN CABBAGE WORMS.

"X.," Muscadine, Ala.—Can you tell me what will destroy worms on cabbage? They are a little worm about an inch long and stripes running across the back and under side. It is green. Only bother cabbage that are heading and are on the inside of the leaf.

Would be glad to know how to get rid of them.

Answer—Probably the safest treatment for the cabbage worms is to dust the plants from time to time with pyrethrum 1 part, wood ashes (or road dust), 3 parts. Truck growers almost universally dust their plants with 2 ozs. of paris green, intimately mixed with 4 or 5 pounds of cheap flour, or air-slaked lime, using a sleezy, washed and dried flour sack for the purpose. I suggest that you mention when you say that the worms "bother only when the cabbage are heading" if you mean that they bother only, will probably see the white and yellow butterflies flitting from plant to plant. If cabbage plants may be sprayed with a solution of 2 ozs. paris green kept constantly stirred up in 25 gallons of water.

CORN ON PASTURE LAND.

F. C. Boyd, Greenberry, N. C.—I have a small fraction over one acre of land that has been used for pasture for several years or more. I sowed in clover and grass and some time last year. This land is now in pasture and covered in weeds and grass and clover. I want to plant this in corn and I have something like thirty or forty one-horse loads of oak and pine ashes to broadcast over the land.

Will you kindly give me general advice as best methods of preparing and planting and also what kind of fertilizer to use and how much. I am a subscriber to The Constitution, and have been for years, and I am not a farmer but always enjoy reading your department.

Answer—In the absence of any knowledge of the character and quality of the land I can only reply in a general way. Your object is to ascertain if or not the ashes are leached (been exposed a long time to the weather).

I suggest that you turn over the land as deeply as practicable, not to turn up more than an inch of clay subsoil, after first scattering the ashes over the surface as evenly as possible. Then harrow the surface and lay off wide, open furrows four feet apart, and scatter in these a guano that would analyze about 10—3—1 (the three being nitrogen). Or you may use a mixture of 200 pounds of 16 per cent acid phosphate and 200 pounds of cotton meal, say 500 pounds either of the 10—3—1 or 16 per cent acid and meal, of the acid and meal mixture. Run a scooter furrow through it once or twice, so as to mix the fertilizer well with the soil and plant in the same furrow, covering with a forked plow or with one or two furrows with a scooter. Furrows to be about 3 inches deep. Cultivate every ten days, shallow, and apply 100 pounds of nitrate of soda at second plowing.

(1) INOCULATING FOR COWPEAS. (2) FARMOGERM AND NITRAGIN.

B. F. Tignor, White Sulphur Springs, Ga.—I read a good deal of inoculating the field peas for enriching land. Do you think it worth while to inoculate peas and sow them in corn when laying it by? Do you think it would improve the growing crop of corn any? Is there any specific bacterin for peas? Is there any difference between farmogerm and nitragin? They cost about the same.

Answer—While I was director of Georgia experiment station, Mr. Hugh A. Morton, horticulturist, made a very careful experiment to determine if our southern soils required inoculation for successful peas. The results in cowpea culture. For the purpose of the test he made careful search on the neighboring farms to find, if possible, a field or piece of land on which cowpeas had never been grown. He finally chose part of a detached field on which, the owner said, cowpeas had not been planted for the last 20 years. The result of the experiment justified the conclusion that our southern soils do not require inoculation in order to grow cowpeas. In other words, we have grown the crop so long that our soils generally contain the necessary germs or seed themselves supply the germs in sufficient quantity.

(2) As I understand it, "farmogerm" and "nitragin" are commercial terms for the same thing, and the user should say what organism he wishes to benefit; by their use and the seller will supply the germs. Nitragin, or farmogerm, that contains the proper germs for the class of legumes to which the plant to be cultivated belongs.

FERTILIZER FOR CORN.

L. Cox, Clay, La.—Will you please tell me your views of the fertilizer of which I enclose the label. Acid phosphate acid, 8.00; ammonia, 3.00; potash, 2.00; for corn and oats land. It is high-priced and I am contemplating for corn.

Answer—A fertilizer analyzing 8—3—2 is rather deficient in nitrogen for corn on old upland, but will do very well if you add to each 200 pounds of it, about 20 pounds of nitrate of soda, or 50 pounds of cotton seed meal. If you shall use the latter you can mix it with the guano before applying it. If nitrate of soda you may do the same or you may make separately at planting (drop it within 6 inches before bunching for tassel.

COCKROACHES.

O. S. Forest, Atlanta, Ga.—We are—at our dwelling—the pantry—is completely overrun with roaches if you can, will you, if you please, tell me what to do so that we may get rid of them?

Answer—Keep powdered borax mixed with granulated sugar sprinkled freely from your druggist and spread thinly on small cubes of soft bread crumbs and lay these about on the shelves where they are seen, carefully removing or destroying other food. Another remedy, highly recommended by authorities is as follows. Very intimately mix equal parts of powdered chocolate and borax and dust it about in the crevices where the roaches hide, removing or covering all food as before. Better get your druggist to mix the ingredients unless you have a mortar and pestle. I will thank you if you will report results as I have often given these two remedies to inquirers, but have had no occasion to try either of them myself.

WORMS AND WORM COLIC.

J. G. R., Perryville, Ala.—I have a mule 10 or 12 years old, stays in good condition, has shed off well, but has been sick three times in the last two months; when first taken will raise his head a little and turn up his upper lip, but gets to rolling like he has colic, and quits turning his lip up; does not stand and stretch like I have seen some sick horses, but lays flat on the ground with head and legs stretched out until the pain gets so severe; rolls, gets up, walk a few steps, will drop down on the ground as before; he is hearty and fed on sound corn, hay and fodder. He urinates (when at work) from 3 to 5 times per day, the urine being of a milky color. His bowels seem to be regular and he looks healthy, with the exception of once when he was sick they were loose, or soft, with a mucous substance, and after close examination found some small worms, 1-8 of an inch long and about the size of a sewing thread, I give him salt regularly; give H. H. & R. and International stock powders, and have been giving him saltpeter an dcopperas.

Answer—The symptoms indicate that your mule has worms in his intestines and these sometimes produce symptoms of colic. The worms you have noticed are known as thread worms and the species sometimes, rarely, cause trouble. They usually inhabit the rectum, or lower part of the bowels, and can be got rid of by injections into the rectum, of an infusion of 2 ounces of quassia chips (drug store) overnight in 1 pint of water, or instead you may inject 2 drams of tincture chloride of iron in one pint of water. It is probable, however, that he may be infected by other and more harmful species of worms, and advise you to treat for such, as follows: Give morning and night for 3 or 4 days, on an empty stomach, 3 teaspoonfuls of turpentine in 2 pint linseed oil well shaken up. Let him have raw linseed oil at a dose as a purge. Another good remedy is to mix 2 drams asafetida, 1 dram of calomel, 1 dram of savin and 2 drams of fluid extract of male shield fern. Mix all into a ball and give at night on an empty stomach. (One level teaspoonful is a dram). Leave some salt mixture to lay up his animal benefit is sometimes obtained from using drams copperas and 1-2 oz. (1 tablespoonful) of gentian at a dose morning and night in a bran mash. I do not like it that way. If not shake a dose of it up in a quart of gruel and give as a drench.

The turning up of the upper lip is considered a sign of worms.

RETAINED AFTERBIRTH OF COW.

D. M. Mumford, Osborne, N. C.—I have a Jersey cow that was in good fix. She found calf on May 24, but afterbirth did not clear until yesterday. She eats, but goes with humped back, seems weak generally, looks as if her back is stiff, and hind legs weak. She is losing flesh; is in wood's pasture; gives her corn, sweet corn and bran for feed. Please tell me the trouble and remedy.

Answer—The symptoms as described do not clearly indicate a particular disease. If she never had fever after her until the present year I would be inclined to suspect that she is cattle fever (Texas fever). But your reference to the fact that she did not clear the afterbirth until the 8th day of calving suggests that the protruded portion only has come away and that a considerable portion is still in the womb, and in a putrefying condition. This would be indicated by a very fetid, foul-smelling discharge from the womb. If this is the case, you should first give a drench of from 2 to 4 pounds Epsom salts in half gallon of cold water, then, immediately, inject into the womb a gallon of tepid soapy water, to which should be stirred one-half ounce of carbolic acid to 2 gallons of water. After shaking up well in a bottle with a portion of the water, dissolve 1 ounce permanganate of potash together two ounces each of pulverized copperas and gentian; divide into 12 doses and give one dose in the feed and morning in gut gruel until all have been taken. Inject the womb as treated if necessary. If she shall not improve promptly and the foul discharge shall continue and she appear to become weak and breathing rapid, repeat the carbolic injection and give the following three times a day until reaction occurs: two ounces each of sulphate of iron, powdered gentian and tincture ginger and one ounce of tincture chloride of iron and give this dose in a quart of oatmeal gruel.

SPLIT HOOF OF COW.

"R. E.," X, Ga.—My cow is fat and hearty and grazes all day on a 6-acre clover lot; grass is very short. Her hoofs are split and she drags herself along rather than walks. She is not shedding her hoofs. What must I do for her? Last August she was sick with her udder and hind legs and her feet also, and her stall was damp through the winter. She have been feeding her cottonseed hulls and about four pounds of cottonseed meal a day; her bowels are loose now. She has had two and a half gallons of milk. Her flow is diminished some; her calf is nearly three weeks old.

Answer—A so-called split hoof is very rare and I am not sure that I can cure where the walls of the claws are weak from long standing or soft from some other cause. It requires a simple surgical operation. The two parts should be brought together and a small hole drilled through the wall into and through the other side, commencing at the coronet inside back of the split on each side. Then drive a small horse shoe nail through the hole, twist off the projecting end of wire, and clinch (the nail) or twist the two ends (wire) together in front. Be careful that you never drive the nail. The horn of the toes should be pared as closely as shown and the sole of feet should be mopped with 25 per cent solution of carbolic acid or of creolin. Your cow should be turned out this fall what is known as mycotic stomatitis, or sore mouth, in the mouth alone, usually, but sometimes affects the udder and the feet and the present condition of the feet may be a sequel.

SEEDY TO—A REMEDY.

J. R. Shackelford, Fayetteville, N. C.—I see an inquiry from L. F. G., Woodcliff, Ga., in Constitution of June 3, for remedy for seedy to. As I have for years and had a great deal of experience with seedy toe and have tried most all remedies, I will give my treatment, which has never failed to make a cure.

First have the foot all well hear without bleeding, but on shoe 1-4 inch longer than foot at heel, turn tow calks at nail shoe on an instal. Accept two front nails, take keyhole saw and saw out front part of hoof at least half-way up the cavity and clean out cavity and leave it open. Put a little Japanese oil in cavity once a day for several days then fill cavity with shoe wax and pare the foot again and treat shod as you would a horse's more of the front of hoof, until cavity grows out. You can publish this for the benefit of any reader, if you will and especially Mr. L. F. G.

CONGESTION OF LUNGS OF PIGS.

W. B. Dixon, Oxford, N. C.—Will you please tell me what to do? Constitution the trouble with my hogs. I have lost several shoats lately, they don't seem to be sick but have a short wind, cough occasionally, and when taken past for breath and thump in sides. Are running on woods and getting wild oats no access to houses; feeding some whipped stuff. They are in good condition. Is the disease catching and what treatment would you advise?

Answer—Congestion of the lungs, labored, spasmodic breathing indicates congestion of the lungs, but it is not likely that a number of pigs would be sick of this disease at the same time, but strongly suggests that they have worms which sometimes, begins in that way. Congestion of the lungs, however, is a very common disease of pigs, especially fat pigs, and you might treat for that disease, which is nearly always serious and very often will not promptly relieved. As soon as possible after an animal is attacked give one teaspoonful of aromatic spirits of ammonia, and one teaspoonful of spirits of nitrous ether as a drench in half gallon cold water and repeat in 1-2 hour, if necessary or give 1 to 2 tablespoonfuls of whisky. Cover the body with a warm blanket and rub the legs with compound soap liniment. Keep up the stimulant, for a day or two, but not so frequently. Whisky is better to-ward the last than the ether or ammonia.

Dog Dies of Broken Heart.

Toodles, a coal tinted toy French poodle, belonging to Miss Mildred Lewis, of Denver, died of a broken heart. She was clipped for the first time a few days ago, and he never held up his head again after getting one look at himself in a mirror. He lost al interest in life, drooped and moped and refused to eat.

HE'LL DASH FOR TOP OF THE WORLD

DONALD B. MacMILLAN, WHO WILL SEEK NEW CONTINENT IN ARCTIC

Donald B. MacMillan is getting ready for his drift into the icy fastnesses of the north. He starts in July to solve the remaining mystery of old mother earth's top crust. He will endeavor to explore Crocker Land, the supposed continent sighted by Peary from Cape Thomas Hubbard in 1906. When the exploration party sails from Sydney, New South Wales, on the whaler Diana in July, under the leadership of MacMillan, the explorers will include a scooter and a complete wireless outfit. He expects to be gone two years, but will be thoroughly up to date. Electricity will also be utilized for lighting, cooking the meals and heating in the refrigerator part of the ship. The main object of the expedition is to discover and explore the unknown area north of the present limit of the Arctic explorations, and, if conditions are favorable, to penetrate the Greenland ice cap. MacMillan was with Peary on his dash to the North Pole.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 15.—When a Southern railway passenger train struck an automobile near Ooltewah, sixteen miles from this city today, Finis Plumlee, 43, well-known Chattanoogan, was killed. His wife received serious cuts and bruises about the face and head. Miss Willie Newton and Leo Chamberlain, the chauffeur, also were badly hurt. The dead and wounded were brought to this city.

BROWN BADLY INJURED SWINGING A TRAIN

While trying to swing a passenger train which was speeding toward his home in Stone Mountain, K. C. Brown, a merchant, was badly hurt, his head being injured, and his leg broken. Though still alive when he arrived at Elkin & Goldsmith sanitarium, in Patterson's automobile and ambulance, Brown's injury gave the attending physicians much concern, and they believe he has been fatally hurt.

The accident occurred at Decatur and Moore streets at about 12 o'clock Sunday night, while Brown, and C. B. Bishop, a companion of 25 years of age, also a merchant, attempted to board a passenger train which was in motion. C. B. Bishop, who gave his residence as Brookhaven, Ga., and was arrested in charge of "swinging a moving train," and spent the night at the police station.

AUCTION

NEXT THURSDAY IS THE DAY

Ex-Secretary Wilson---

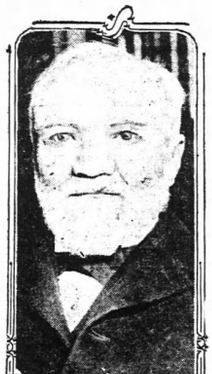
Hon. James Wilson, former Secretary of Agriculture in Washington during several administrations, said not long ago in a speech before the people of Augusta, Ga.:

"You are going to find your lands getting away from you and prices advancing. The people from the North and West are coming South. This is the realm of future prosperity. The soil, climate and the people of the South have heretofore been greatly misunderstood. A new epoch in its history is now beginning. Opportunity for development in the South is unrivaled, and is here for both capitalist and home-seeker."

Mr. Wilson is well fitted to speak about the South. And these words coming from a man who knows every section of the country are very significant. He has been here many times and has studied the land question in the South closely. For that reason he is well qualified to speak.

What he says is reason why real estate is an excellent investment, and particularly Atlanta real estate. And past history shows that no section of Atlanta is better for investment in real estate than Ansley Park. That's why the twenty-five lots which will be auctioned off next Thursday in Ansley Park Annex will be excellent investments. Somebody is going to make some money. Will it be you?

Andrew Carnegie Says---



"Young woman or young man, buy some suburban property and hold on to it. It is the surest investment since civilization."

The famous ironmaster knows what he is talking about. He has practiced what he preaches, for he is a large landowner.

Everybody knows what happened after every other auction of Ansley Park lots. Those who keep posted say the same thing will happen regarding the Ansley Park Annex lots which will be auctioned off next Thursday afternoon.

Thousands upon thousands of dollars have been made for Ansley Park investors. The name of Ansley Park has been synonymous with increased values and steady enhancement. Ansley Park Annex has been given the same care and attention which characterized the development of Ansley Park. The lots are high and overlook Ansley Park.

Ansley Park Annex lots present a good opportunity to Atlanta investors to follow the advice of the millionaire ironmaster.

Russell Sage---

During his lifetime, the advice of Russell Sage was sought by the greatest financiers in the world. He was an authority on the accumulation of money and that he was a good authority was demonstrated by the many millions which he left when he died. This is what he thought about real estate investments:

"Buy lots in outlying districts, paying a small sum each week; await developments, follow your vocation and in the end other people have made money for you."

That this was good advice has been shown time and again in Atlanta, and with Ansley Park lots in particular. The enhancement in this property has been phenomenal. It is pointed out by enthusiastic Atlantans as an illustration of Atlanta's wonderful growth. The whole South knows about it.

That's why Ansley Park Annex lots which will be auctioned off next Thursday will present an excellent opportunity for following the advice of the late financier.

Grover Cleveland--

Not only successful business men and financiers point to enhancement in realty values as good illustrations of the accumulation of wealth, but the same advice is given by statesmen. Among those who made a close study of this was the late ex-President Grover Cleveland. This is what he said:

"More wealth has been gathered from the suburban realty than all other methods combined."

Isn't the advice of such authorities worth following? Just think of the Atlanta men you know about who have made fortunes by the enhancement of Atlanta real estate values. You can count lots of them. Even among your friends you will find some who have made money by simply buying Atlanta real estate, and then, as Russell Sage said: "Let other people make money for you."

Remember the day of the auction—

NEXT THURSDAY, JUNE 19. If you go out there and buy a lot, it will probably be an eventful day for you. It may be that your fortune will date from that day. There are twenty-five lots out there waiting to make money for some folks. Be one of the folks.

NEW CROP CONDITIONS AND THE JULY DEAL

They Will Be the Main Influences in Cotton Market This Week.

New Orleans, June 15.—The July deal and new crop conditions will be the main influences in the cotton market this week. It will be interesting to observe whether the July position can run in its providence. For some time past it has dominated the entire situation; bears have almost openly acknowledged their fear of the operations under way, and have allowed them to wholly offset favorable reports from the cotton belt; it remains to be seen whether this state of affairs can prevail much longer, especially if crop accounts continue to improve.

What the bear side fears most is that large quantities of cotton will leave this side of the water as the result of acceptances of deliveries against July. Stocks at ports in this country are already 100,000 bales less than they were a year ago, which brings about a trying situation for shorts, and further depletion would become extremely embarrassing. It is claimed in some quarters that owners of spots in the south have been sellers of July contracts, and will deliver a large quantity of cotton. Anything that develops this week to strengthen this belief may have an important bearing on the immediate position of the market.

While the entire cotton belt has recently experienced abnormally cold weather for June, crop accounts have not reflected any great damage, although the trade believes that the growth of the young plant has been considerably retarded by the cold. Some complaint of too much rain is coming in from the northern counties of Alabama and Georgia. What will be most favorable this week will be bright, warm weather. The crop can get along without any moisture at all, and would make quick growth under forcing temperatures. Such conditions would undoubtedly lead to renewed strong short selling of the new crop months, although it might not have any effect at all on the old crop options.

The spot markets will be closely watched. Recent signs of an improvement in the inquiry were important, and any further improvement in the demand will serve to intensify the effect of the campaign in July.

WEATHER TO BE HOT DURING PRESENT WEEK

Washington, June 15.—Warm weather, with clear skies, over the greater part of the country is predicted for the coming week by the weather bureau.

"There will be scattered thundershowers the first part of the week along the northern border," the weekly bulletin says, "and by the middle of the week showers will set in along the east gulf and south Atlantic coast.

"No important storm is charted to cross the country during the ensuing week, although a disturbance of minor intensity will cross the west Wednesday over the western plateau region and advance thence in a northeasterly direction, attended by local thundershowers and reach the region of the great lakes Thursday or Friday."

Stimson Speaks in New York.

New York, June 15.—Rev. R. D. Stinson, head of the Atlanta Normal and Industrial college, spoke today in the Abyssinian church, Rev. Dr. A. Clayton Powel, pastor. A thousand persons gave close attention to his plea for his school and industrial training for masses of negro race. He told how the best people of the south were willing to help and encourage those of the race who showed a disposition to be honest and true. He asked the audience to help the school to build a girl's dormitory and a place to teach trades. A contribution was taken by Dr. Powell

CONSTITUTION PICTURE WILL FIGURE IN TRIAL

Solicitor Wants Photograph of Spot Where Mary Phagan's Body Was Found.

A flashlight picture, made by The Constitution's staff photographer, is to be used as evidence by the prosecution in the trial of Leo M. Frank. This was made evident Sunday afternoon, when Detective John Starnes applied to a Constitution reporter for the photograph of the spot in the pencil factory basement, where Mary Phagan's body was discovered.

Starnes would not state why he wanted the picture, saying only that it would be used by the prosecution. He was extremely desirous of getting it, and it will be put in his possession this morning. It is rumored that by the picture an effort will be made to corroborate certain statements of James Conley, the negro sweeper, when he is placed on the witness stand.

Starnes told the reporter that the prosecution was ready for trial. He expressed confidence that the mystery would be cleared at the coming trial, which he believes will be held on the thirtieth. In case of postponement, he says, it will be the fault of the defense, as the state is ready.

Starnes has been intimately associated with the solicitor general during the murder investigation. In fact, he has been more closely in touch with Dorsey than any other official concerned in the case. He is a detective attached to headquarters, and associated with Detective Pat Campbell, who has been identified with many big criminal cases which the detective department has solved.

LANE DECLARES POLICY AS TO U. S. WATER RIGHTS

Washington, June 15.—"The lower the rate charged to consumers by electric power companies, the lower will be the tax, which such power companies must pay to the government."

Secretary Lane, of the interior department, today announced this as the "heart of the policy adopted as to the disposition of water rights of the government."

Mr. Lane has pending before him several applications for rights to use the public lands and the waters of navigable streams for the development of electrical power. He is opposed to making use of these waters as a source of revenues to the government, but is in favor of requiring the fullest use of them for the benefit of the people and has laid down five conditions as "an ideal standard." These conditions are:

"1. The greater the development of horsepower the lower the charge per horsepower to be made on the part of the government. This is intended to secure the full use of the stream.

"2. The lower the rate to consumers the lower the charge on the part of the government.

"3. No charge whatever for a period of five or ten years, during which the power company is finding its market.

"4. Acceptance as public utility of the state's jurisdiction over intrastate rates and service, and of federal jurisdiction over interstate rates and service

"5. Absolute prohibition of combination or monopoly and the right of revocation on the part of the government in the event that it is established to the satisfaction of the secretary of the interior or the courts that such combination has been made or that prices have been fixed by agreement with competing plants."

LYING IN A BATHTUB, CLUBMAN KILLS SELF

New York, June 15.—Made desperate by ill health, Karl Hutter, millionaire clubman, who had amassed his fortune through the invention of a porcelain bottle stopper used by many big bottling establishments, shot and killed himself today in his apartments.

His body was found lying in a bathtub full of water in which he had seated himself before firing the fatal shot.

Mr. Hutter dismissed his nurse for the afternoon and while she was absent wrote a note saying the pain he had endured had driven him to this act. He was a bachelor 62 years old. His chief hobby was collecting rugs.

On motion of Lord Kinnaird, seconded by Count Von Moltke, of Denmark, and Count De Pourtales, of France, the conference declared in favor of international arbitration.

The meeting tonight closed the conference. Dr. Paul DeGouttes was elected chairman of the world's committee.
